One Big Immigrant Only 500 Years Ago
The Greek Frogs
A Rockefeller Gift

Mexico has consented to receive ten thousand Russian immigrants—Mennonites—let them buy land, run their own schools and have their own religion. The ten thousand Russians will help Mexico. What that country needs is greater dilution of its dark Indian blood.

That will form a useful mixture later, but there is too much of it now. The people of Mexico, through the natives, are too near the barbarism of the late stone age, inconceivable to us.

Wells, in his admirable "Outline of History," reminds you that "it is not more than five hundred years since the great empire of the Aztecs still believed that it could only live by the shedding of blood. Every year in Mexico hundreds of victims died in this fashion. The body was bent like a bow, over the curved stone of sacrifice, the breast was slashed open with a knife of obsidian, and the priest tore out the beating heart of the still living victim."

That "victim" of the Mexicans, only five hundred years ago, was a human being, and the victim, like the crowd watching his agony, believed that God was well pleased with the performance. We ourselves are not so far advanced, since many of us believe that the present and actual ruler of this universe was until recently pleased with animal victims and the smell of their burning flesh.

We are more advanced than our Mexican brothers, however, for that race, so near the curved stone of sacrifice, has a good deal to do with present Mexican affairs.

Our race is removed by ten thousand years from human sacrifice. And we were studying the stars and charting their movements when Mexico was still studying the entrails of human victims and counting the beat of a quivering heart.

The colonist that Mexico ought to invite within her borders is the United States government. Mexico would annex the United States as much, in proportion, as this country would annex Mexico. Brilliant Mexican orators would be welcome in our House and Senate, and before long all Mexico would look and prosper like Texas, California and other States of this Union that were recently a part of Mexican soil. We ought to help the Mexicans with that program. Perhaps Senator Harding will do it. A fine epitaph would be:

"He located the southern boundary of the United States south of the Panama Canal."

In Athens the Greeks give a great reception to their princes, brothers of Constantine, driven out in war. One prince is carried on the shoulders of the mob.

The frogs croaked and begged until they got a king. The Greeks will get the king they want. When a nation is not ready or fit for freedom it is fortunate in knowing its own unfitness. Not everybody should try to go into business for himself.

John D. Rockefeller has given to a fund for women and children $65,000,000 additional to ten millions given previously to that fund, in honor of Mr. Rockefeller's wife, who died five years ago. Mr. Rockefeller's gifts for public uses, as many as were publicly made, now amount to $475,000,000.

How fortunate are people that have not sense enough to supply their own needs from the nation's unlimited wealth, that a citizen, like Rockefeller should appear with intelligence to gather money, self-control to save it, and generosity to distribute it. The world improves. A little while ago a man as rich as Rockefeller could have invested all that money in great cathedrals or other futile efforts to save his soul from future flames.

Rockefeller spends the money to save other men from sleeping sickness, hookworm, yellow fever; to save other men's children from infantile paralysis. He KNOWS that hookworm and yellow fever are real. Not so sure, perhaps, about that ancient germ, the worm that dieth not.

More and more men realize that their duty is to their fellows on earth, to the future and to past generations that have made semi-civilization for us.

The race as a whole is selfish and without imagination or sympathy. But, to quote Wells again, "To day may be close at hand when we shall no longer tear out the hearts of men, even for the sake of our national gods."

Wells refers, probably, to the gods of national vanity and hate to whom men are sacrificed in war. Many are sacrificed also to the great dollar god, by men whose minds are concentrated on accumulating what they do not need.

BRITISH ARREST ARTHUR GRIFFITH

4 KILLED IN GRAND TRUNK WRECK

LEADERS IN IRELAND SEIZED

Acting Head of Republic, With Professor McNeill and Many Others, Locked Up

By International News Service.

London, Nov. 26.—Arthur Griffith, M. P., founder of the Sinn Fein and acting President of the Irish republic in the absence of Eamon De Valera in the United States, was arrested today in Dublin by Black and Tan police.

Professor McNeill, another prominent Sinn Fein leader, and others were arrested at the same time.

Reports of arrests of other prominent Sinn Feiners were received hourly from all parts of Ireland.

More Irish people have been "rounded up" by the police since last Sunday than in the raids which followed the Dublin uprising in 1916.

Mr. Griffith charged, after his arrest today, that police agents had recently sought his life, but had failed to frighten him out of his ordinary routine.

"I did not attempt to disappear to save myself from assassination," said the Sinn Fein chieftain. "I continued to go about my affairs as always, eating at the same place and sleeping in my home every night, where I could have been found by raiders if they sought me. This is no surprise to me. I have been expecting arrest for some time."

ARREST CAUSES SENSATION.

Mr. Griffith was arrested in his home and his seizure caused a great sensation. In many quarters he has been regarded as a moderating influence.

An official telegram was received by the Irish office from Dublin Castle this afternoon reporting the arrest of Griffith, but the nature of the charge was not given.

Although violence in all its forms still stalks through Ireland, the British government has decided not to impose martial law at this time.

That the advisability of imposing martial law on Ireland has been under consideration by the cabinet since Sunday was revealed today. Premier Lloyd George stated, however, that it was "undesirable" to

'CONSCIENCE' SENDS TO POLICE, WATCH HE FOUND

Actuated by the Thanksgiving spirit, an unidentified person mailed to Chief Inspector McGarr a gold open-faced watch, which was received today with the following brief and unsigned note: "Found in a downtown street some time ago. Thanks for the use of it." "Conscience," remarked Chief Inspector McGarr.

TO BAR CONSTANTINE, VENIZELOS BELIEVES

Nice, Nov. 26.—Eleutherios Venizelos former Premier of Greece, who exiled himself from his native land after the monarchist victory in the general election, declared today that ex-King Constantine could not return to Athens. The Greek people are not unanimous in wishing the return of the former King, and I do not believe he could return," said M. Venizelos. "As for myself, I shall rest and watch events."

MONTH'S FOOD IN STORAGE

Huge Supply of Meat, Fish and Dairy Products on Hand in Greater Boston

Enough food is in the cold storage warehouses of Greater Boston to feed every man, woman and child in the State of Massachusetts for one month, according to figures made public today by Herman C. Lythgoe, chief of the division of food and drugs in the State Department of Public Health.

Enough eggs are stored to give every Massachusetts citizen 2½ dozen; enough meat to supply all with 5½ pounds; enough fish to give all five pounds and enough butter to give each 8¾ pounds.

The total of butter on hand November 1, adds Mr. Lythgoe, is the highest on record, being 5,174,799 pounds, compared with the previous maximum of 14,551,492 pounds in 1917.

Eggs on the contrary show a decide ddecrease, only 9,746,960 dozen being stored Nov. 1, as compared with more than eleven million dozens in 1919 and thirteen million dozens in 1918.

Meat and fish supplies also show reduction on the figures for previous years. The October meat figures show only 9,215,881 pounds in the warehouses as compared with 8,366,661 pounds in 1918, and 2,986,619 pounds of fish as compared with 3,-302,091 pounds last year.

PRISON FOR ALCOHOL 'SLAYER'

Romanelli, Whose Mixture Killed 100 in Massachusetts, Gets 3 to 7 Years

By International News Service.

New York, Nov. 26.—John Romanelli, Brooklyn undertaker found guilty last week of having distributed wood alcohol through New York, Massachusetts and Connecticut which is said to have caused more than 100 deaths just a year ago, was sentenced today to from three to seven years in Sing Sing.

Legal loopholes saved Romanelli from being tried for murder. He was indicted on a charge of first degree murder in Massachusetts. Then a law was discovered which prevented his extradition from New York because he was in this State when the crime was committed in another.

The United States district attorney's both here and in Massachusetts then upon took the case before the grand juries, only to find that indictments in two jurisdictions at the same time had the effect of invalidating both.

Romanelli then was prosecuted on a charge of grand larceny, on the ground that he had been instrumental in the removal of forty drums of wood alcohol consigned to Hull, Eng., from the pier to his garage, where the drums were emptied and refilled with water.

Romanelli confessed and implicated six others, thereby gaining clemency.

The maximum sentence would have been from five to ten years. Justice Kapper, after announcing this, added:

"I believe, however, that were it not for this man's activities this awful catastrophe would not have occurred and those 100 persons would be alive today."

ROUND UP 'AUTO RING' SUSPECTS

Police After 20 Who Were Secretly Indicted by Middlesex County Jury

Police of Cambridge, Somerville and Medford today began a roundup of the twenty alleged auto thieves secretly indicted by the Middlesex Grand Jury.

In connection with this drive, the aiz no of one woman already under arrest as the result of the discovery of a alleged "nest" of auto thieves in Medford will be arraigned Monday in the Middlesex Superior Court at East Cambridge.

The secret indictments are out for the twenty men and women wanted according to Assistant District Attorney George Stanley Harvey. He expects the arrest of practically all the suspects before night.

Mr. Harvey personally directed the force of city and State police taking part in the round-up.

He stated interesting revelations as a result of the breaking up of what he called the Medford auto theft "ring" and the arrest of the seven or six men.

Among those De Gloria of Main street, Medford, the woman taken in the raid, said by the police authorities to be one of the most active gang of auto thieves in Greater Boston.

She is forty years old, and the wife of Louis De Gloria, who was also arrested. Daniel Hutil, a chauffeur employed by De Gloria, was taken, and it is believed will be able to shed much light on the activities of the gang.

Four other men were later arrested in the parts of Greater Boston under investigation with the De Gloria's. They gave their names and addresses as Frank Gould, thirty-six years old, Story street, Cambridge; William Chick, automobile dealer, same address; Joseph Caddell, Worcester street, South End, and Leo Cody of Medford street, Somerville. Otol is charged with receiving stolen cars.

Rally Tonight for 'America First'

Mechanics Hall in Huntington avenue will be crowded to the last square inch of its capacity tonight on the occasion of the "America First" Thanksgiving promoted by the Boston American with the intention of celebrating fittingly the return of Americans to the Americanism of the fathers.

Announcement that United States Senators Jamed A. Reed, Thomas H. Gore and David I. Walsh, together with Governor John H. Bartlett of New Hampshire, would be the orators of the evening undoubtedly has intensified Greater Boston interest in this noble celebration.

The chairman will be the Hon. Joseph E. Warner of Taunton, Speaker

By International News Service.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 26.—Eddie O'Donnell, the racing driver who was injured yesterday at the Los Angeles Speedway when Gaston Chevrolet, famous driver, was killed instantly and Lyle Jolley, a mechanician, was fatally hurt in a collision, died at 7:30 o'clock today at the California Hospital.

RECEIVERS NAMED FOR WINNISIMMET SHIPYARD

William B. Green and Edmund K. Arnold, both of Boston, were today appointed temporary receivers for the Winnisimmet Shipyard, Inc., Chelsea, by Judge Anderson in the Federal Court. The appointments were made on the petition of the Crandall Engineering Company of this city, charging that the shipbuilding company was indebted to them for $28,262.62 for money advanced for materials and labor, and $2,950 as the attorney's fee claim. The petitioners further charged that the shipyard owed $150,000 to other firms and individuals.

CALLS ON BRITAIN TO LEAD DISARMAMENT

Bradford, Eng., Nov. 26.—France and United States are spending countless millions for armaments," declared Sir Donald Maclean, a Liberal member of the House of Commons, in moving a resolution today at the Liberal conference calling upon Great Britain take the lead in disarmament.

"While all nations of the world from crushing and complete destruction and Great Britain should take the lead in this salvation," said the speaker.

"BLIND JIM," POPCORN PEDLER, IS DEAD

Manchester, N. H., Nov. 26.—James A. Neal, the blind popcorn pedler, is dead. For more than thirty years "Blind Jim," as he was called, sold popcorn on the streets. He had a remarkable memory of voices. Intuition established in him to find his way about the city. In all his travels he had but one mishap, when he stepped into a traffic bulkhead on Manchester street. Neal had been a resident of Goffstown for forty years.

URGES STRONG NAVAL BASES

Maj.-Gen. L. H. Beach Declares Invasion Impossible While Fleet Remains Intact

Washington, Nov. 26.—So long as our important naval stations are adequately defended against any probable naval attack, no enemy will venture a landing in strength on the soil of the United States, according to Major-General Lansing H. Beach, chief of engineers, in the first section of his annual report to the Secretary of War made public today.

"It is an accepted fact," said General Beach, "that our shores can never be invaded in force unless our own navy is either destroyed or effectively blockaded within our coast line. The first essential of a successful defence requires, as never before, that our important naval stations shall be adequately defended against probable naval attack."

General Beach declared that one of the most important deductions from the World War was the necessity for equipping such bases with an armament fit to cope with any carried on battleships now building or contemplated.

He stated that the principles enunciated by the board of engineers in 1829, (1) to provide safe anchorage for our fleet; (2) to deny our harbors to a hostile fleet and (3) to protect our important cities and naval stations from bombardment from sea have been served by the war to be as sound today as when stated.

FLORAL TRIBUTES TO POLICE CAPTAIN HOPPE

Police Captain Bernard J. Hoppe, promoted from lieutenant as a Thanksgiving present, received a number of floral tributes from the men of the traffic division today. Among them was a five-foot floral horseshoe. He will remain in charge of the traffic division, where he has made an enviable record for efficiency. Captain Hoppe was born in 1867. In 1900 he joined the police force. He was made a sergeant in 1918, and late in that year was assigned to the traffic desk in the Superintendent's office. He was created a lieutenant November 25, 1919.

VICTIMS PINNED UNDER DEBRIS

Grand Trunk Flyer Leaps Rails Near Montreal, Killing 4 and Injuring Scores

By International News Service.

Toronto, Nov. 26.—At least four persons, possibly seven, are dead and a score injured as a result of one of the worst train wrecks this section has witnessed in years. Grand Trunk night express No. 16, bound from Montreal for this city, was derailed near York, a few miles from Toronto.

While the wreck occurred last night the rescue work did not get underway until today, and the soldiers still are confronted with great difficulties, for the crash reduced part of the train to splinters. Beneath the mass of debris bodies are buried, but no one knows as yet exactly how many.

Two have been extricated and two others are sighted. The rescue workers, consulting the board of engineers in 1829, (1) to provide safe anchorage for our fleet; (2) to deny our harbors to a hostile fleet and (3) to protect our important cities and naval stations from bombardment from sea have been served by the war to be as sound today as when stated.

A corps of doctors and nurses from Toronto and nearby places were rushed to the scene and are still working feverishly. Four injured taken to one hospital are:

William E. Greggs, Milwaukee, Wis.
George Herron, Listowel, Ont.
Alfred Snyder, St. Jacobs, Ont.
An unidentified man, still unconscious.

One body known to be still pinned under the wreckage is that of a woman.

Seven of the express trains cars were completely buried off the track. Thirty were day coaches, three Pullman sleeping cars and the baggage car.

The Pullman which most of the victims were in was the "Makura."

The scene of the wreck being com-

Wrestling Fans Give $348 to Xmas Fund

Generous lovers of sport who attended George V. Tuohey's excellent wrestling bouts in Mechanics Building last night emptied $348.23 into the Boston American Christmas Basket Fund.

A collection was made among the thousands of patrons following a fine address by Mr. Tuohey, who told of the good work done by the Basket Fund each year. During his speech Mr. Tuohey said:

"Every cent that you contribute toward this great fund will be used to purchase food at Christmas for needy families of Greater Boston. All the overhead expenses are borne by the Boston American and every case is investigated so you may be sure that whatever you give will be used exclusively to buy food for the needy. Whatever you can give will be gratefully received if it is but one cent. I trust that you will give as liberally as possible as there are many unfortunates in our midst this year."

MANY WOMEN PRESENT.

Mr. Tuohey's remarks were heartily applauded. The collectors met with smiles and courtesy on every side. It was one of the best-natured, as

THREE MORE MURDERS.

Michael Moran, a Sinn Fein volunteer, was shot while attempting to escape from Black and Tan policemen in Galway. Martin Lyons, an ex-soldier, was also shot and killed.

The body of Dennis O'Donnell was found at Mitchelstown riddled with bullets.

A serious clash between civilians and police occurred at Millstreet in County Cork. Houses were burned and shops looted. While civilians were attempting to put out a fire bombs exploded in the burning houses. The women and children fled from the village in panic.

The Roman Catholic bishop of death threat if any effort is made to interfere with the soldiers and police in that district according to a dispatch from Dublin. The telegram added that the bishop had notified Sir Hamar Greenwood, Chief Secretary for Ireland, that he would be held responsible if any attempt was made on his (the prelate's) life.

RALLY PROHIBITED.

An Irish rally which was to have been held in Manchester tomorrow with Arthur Griffith, acting president of the Irish Republic, as chief speaker, was prohibited today by the mayor of that city.

Mrs. Muriel MacSwiney, widow of the lord mayor of Cork, boarded the liner Celtic at Queenstown for New York, and was loudly cheered. She will appear before the committee at Washington that is investigating the Irish situation.

Impressive military honors were paid today to nine British army officers slain in Dublin last Sunday. The bodies were brought from Ireland on a destroyer, and arrived in London shortly before 10 o'clock.

HONOR BRITISH SLAIN.

The chief mourner was Sir Hamar Greenwood. King George was represented.

Large crowds, respectfully silent and bareheaded, lined the streets as the flag-draped coffins were borne from the railway station on gun carriages. The band from the Guards played a funeral march and the coffins were escorted by detachments from all branches of the service and details from the Black and Tan police and the Royal Irish constabulary.

Ceremonies for six of the slain officers were held in Westminster Abbey and services for three others, who were Roman Catholics, were conducted in the Westminster Cathedral.

K. of C. Cuts Minimum Wage to $18

New York, Nov. 26.—The Knights of Columbus announced today that in view of the gradual fall in the cost of certain commodities and its effect on the cost of living and also the corresponding scarcity of employment, the organization has reduced the minimum wage for which the K. of C. employment bureaus would solicit jobs.

The reduction is from $20 to $18 per week for men without dependents.

Dry 'Leader' Makes Up For 60 Years Sober

Paris, Nov. 26.—"Down with drink," declared the "president of the Anti-Alcoholic League, America."

Suiting his action to his words, H. C. Wood, aged seventy-eight, of Philadelphia, claiming for himself the above title, proceeded to "make up for sixty years of sobriety in Philadelphia."

Wood was arrested in a raid on a famous Montmartre resort. Admitting that he was intoxicated, Wood claimed that he had imbibed forty-two drinks of brandy, eighteen of pure alcohol and twenty-one snifters of whiskey in a merry three-hour spree.

siderably out of the way, much of the rough work had to be done under primitive conditions. Lanterns gave the workers the only light until day broke. Extreme caution had to be exercised in extricating the wounded, for a false move might have meant death instead of rescue.

The versions of the cause of the wreck are many. The most reliable appears to be that a freight engine on an adjoining track sideswiped the passenger coaches when the express train passed at a terrific speed.

Then, it is said, before danger signals could be set, a westbound freight train plowed into the coaches that had toppled over onto the freight track.

MURDER FEARED BY MISSING WESTFIELD MAN

Westfield, Nov. 26.—Another chapter in the case involving the sudden disappearance of Fred E. Session from his boarding place here the latter part of September and the recent finding of his coat on the banks of the Little river was revealed when Charles Barber of Tully, N. Y., uncle of Session, came here to investigate the disappearance of his nephew.

Mr. Barber said that the night previous to his disappearance the young man had walked the room at his boarding house practically all night mumbling: "They are going to kill me at 6 o'clock." As far as Barber knows his nephew had no reason for doing away with himself, although his mother's death had affected him to a great extent.

Uncle Says Garland's Share Is $250,000

London, Nov. 26. — "I am not surprised that my nephew refused a share of his father's fortune because he did not earn it."

This was the comment of Charles Tuller Garland, wealthy uncle of Charles Garland, Boston Socialist, who declined an inheritance said to amount to one million dollars.

"Charles was at Eton in 1912 and quickly developed advanced ideas," said his uncle. "He was married a year and a half ago. I do not believe that his share of my brother's estate is more than a quarter of a million dollars."

Mrs. Smart Looks for a Maid

By KITTY PARSONS

Yes, Gertie, I've got to stop at this employment bureau for a minute—it won't take me half a second because I know exactly the kind of girl I want. It is really the only way to do—to come yourself, I mean; last time I left an order for one just like some one else had taken and the one they sent was an entirely different quality—you can't afford to take any such chances—especially in a small apartment, you know dear.

. . . . Yes, we are all settled in the new apartment now—I adore it and no one has said a single word about Archie—it's too good to be true, but then no one could object to a child like Archie—he isn't like other children. . . . Where would she sleep? Oh, there's a little balcony off the bath-kitchenette that will be just the thing—most maids like sleeping porches now anyway—it's quite an asset I think. I'll just speak to this woman who seems to be in charge.

WASHING! REALLY MADAME!

. . . . Have you any nice general housework girls this morning? . . . Goodness, she's looking for a place as second assistant parlor maid —what a mistake. Oh, here we are! . . . Yes, I do want a girl—the work is really very light—scarcely anything at all, and perhaps a few little things to wash when I can't get a woman to come in. . . . . How much? Twenty-five a week! You don't say—so! How dreadful! And you only have one in stock today too! Well, I suppose you might as well show her to me.

Are you the young lady who is looking for a place? . . . Oh, you're not particular if you get one or not—dear me! Can you cook? . . . . Well, that wouldn't make so very much difference—my husband almost always gets the breakfast—you wouldn't have to get up till half past nine anyway. Can you wash and iron at all?

. . . Oh no, of course I wouldn't expect you to—no, indeed! You quite misunderstood me—only the pocket handkerchiefs of course—I wouldn't dream of suggesting such a thing. . . . You might do a little washing for thirty—oh, you would? Well, that might be worth considering. Have you your own car? . . . Yes, we have a garage. . . . No, I'm afraid you will be obliged to use the same bath as the family. . . . You wouldn't consider such a thing—oh, dear me, Gertie, isn't it discouraging.

OH YES, MLLE. FINNEHAN.

What did you say your name was? . . . Oh, yes—Miss Finnehan. . . . Oh, MADEMOISELLE Finnehan!. . . Your grandmother was French—you don't say so! My great aunt was, too—I wonder if they could ever have met over there—coincidences do happen. Would you consider such a congenial situation for thirty a week if I did all the washing myself, Mademoiselle Finnehan? . . . Not unless we had another bath put in for you—I'm afraid that couldn't be done—there would be no place but the fire-escape to put it—too bad—so sorry not to have been able to accommodate you.

Now Gertie, do ask her if she has any more to show me—I'm simply sick over the whole thing. . . . Not another general girl in the whole city—how perfectly dreadful! We might as well go along then—the atmosphere here is simply crushing—I can't stand it. What am I going to do?—I simply will not scrub and cook myself—and Harry is so particular.

Oh, would you, dearie? That's an excellent idea! We'll move again and then I'll have another baby and the maid can come. . . . Oh, dear—of course—I forgot that there are no mere apartments either—I'm just sick at heart. Woman's lot is the hardest one all right, my dear—this settles the question of that.

Your hat is on crooked, dearie —it shows the place where your false hair doesn't match your own —there, that's better. Why don't you have it touched up a little bit—I think it would take years off your face—no? But you look a day older than you are—you know what I mean.

No, I haven't the heart to do anything more today—I couldn't make a call if you gave me a thousand dollars—one indeed.

HER ULTIMATUM.

. . . . No, I'm not going to worry any more about the servant question. I'm going home now to bed and when Harry comes in he can get his own dinner—I'm a perfect wreck. That's what I'm going to do—Harry can find a maid himself or he can stay home and do the cooking —that's my ultimatum! If he doesn't, I will simply go on another hunger strike—you remember the one I read you about in my "Memoirs."

. . . . . No, they haven't appeared yet—the first editor I took them to was a very incompetent man and didn't seem to know a good thing when he saw it, so I'm waiting to find just the right man before I go any further in the matter—I suppose I could publish them privately and make enough money to last all the rest of my life; but I didn't want to do that—I really wanted to give some page the privilege of using them first——just to increase their circulation a little—I hate to be perspicuous about anything of such general interest to the public.

. . . . Oh, must you—well, call me up if there is any excitement—I keep the phone right beside my bed so it will be all right. Awfully glad to have seen you dear—good-by

PROBES BOLLING 'BRIBE' STORY

Walsh Committee Continues Shipboard Investigation In New York

By International News Service.

New York, Nov. 26.—The Walsh congressional committee investigating the United States Shipping Board began today to probe the sensational charge made last week by Tucker K. Sands, former Washington banker, that a $10,000 bribe had been offered by the Wallace Downey shipping Corporation to four men, including R. Wymer Bolling, brother-in-law of President Wilson.

Edward S. Malmar, cashier of the Corn Exchange Bank in New York, who was the first witness, told the committee that two notes, one for $10,000 and another for $10,600, signed by Wallace Downey, had passed through the Corn Exchange Bank.

The witness was not asked to whom these notes were made payable, but he was requested to furnish data showing loans made by the Corn Exchange Bank to the Downey Shipbuilding Corporation from March 1, 1917, to March 1, 1919. He also was asked to supply the committee with records showing the month by status of the Downey account.

Sands' charge was that the alleged $10,000 bribe "to get a fat shipbuilding contract" was offered to himself, Bolling and Lester Sisler, former secretary of the Shipping Board.

Jacob Nieman, assistant cashier of the Hanover National Bank, who was next called to the stand, testified that the two Downey notes mentioned by Malmar also passed through his bank, which, he added, acted as an agent for the Tacoma Park National Bank of Washington, D. C.

Both Malmar and Nieman said that no official of any branch of the government had at any time made any inquiry at either bank in connection with these two notes.

FOUR WARSHIPS TO BUILD AT FORE RIVER

Four warships will be built at the Fore River yards of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation. The keel of the superdreadnought Massachusetts will be laid soon after New Year's Day. This will be the largest vessel in the United States navy. Shortly after work on the Massachusetts starts, the keel of the battle cruiser Lexington will be laid. Two unnamed scout cruisers, with 90,000 horsepower engines and a speed of thirty-five knots, will also be built.

RUSSIAN ARMY GOING TO INDIAN FRONTIER

London, Nov. 26.—Russian Red forces have been ordered to take up positions on the frontiers of India and Afghanistan, said a Central News dispatch from Helsingfors today, quoting a report received from Moscow. The telegram added: "George Tchitcherin, people's commissary for foreign affairs, has sent a note to the government of the new state of Georgia giving warning that Soviet Russia intends to attack in the Caucasus."

ONE WOMAN CANDIDATE FOR GLOUCESTER BOARD

Gloucester, Nov. 26.—Mrs. Guy S. Swett is the only woman running for a position on the Gloucester school committee. She has three men opponents in the field. Mrs. Swett is well known as a worker in mothers' clubs, war drives, church and community work.

Annual After-Thanksgiving

Markdown Sale

A Four Day Sale Beginning Today

ON THE day after Christmas we usually hold our greatest sale of the year—greatest in the number of customers served, volume of sales and number of special values. This year we are moving the sale forward a month. For a four-day sale, beginning today, we are offering values as good as those usually offered December 26th. Deflation has begun here. It began last April. It continued throughout the Summer. It is still going on. Our increases in the last eight months have been gratifying evidence of our customers' appreciation of our efforts.

WE BELIEVE that there is no store in the United States in which the stock of merchandise is cleaner and fresher than ours. This After-Thanksgiving Sale will be a fresh effort to increase business still further and to hasten the process of deflation to a basis of comparative stability. The values are here in abundance. The machinery for showing it and distributing it is ready. When we opened this morning we had bargains to justify our hope of one of the largest days in our mercantile life of fifty-two years.

ORATORS TO DRAW BIG CROWD TO "AMERICA FIRST" MEETING

'ALL STAR CAST' ON PROGRAM

Music Is to Be One of the Great Features of the Gathering of the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

Literally hundreds of requests have come to the Boston American for seat reservations. The American has been unable to meet these requests. There will be no reserved seats. The rule must be the old rule of fair play, "first come, first served."

The doors of Mechanics Hall will be opened to the public at 7 o'clock. Our friends who are anxious to hear Reed, Gore, Walsh and Bartlett are urged to come as early as possible. Bring the family. Make this an American night, for Boston to remember and talk about the next time somebody suggests tying the American ship of State to a super-government in Europe.

BAND CONCERT.

From 7 o'clock until 8, one of Boston's best-known musical organizations, Stone's Military Band, will entertain with a preliminary concert. Entering into the spirit of the occasion, Bandmaster James T. Keaney says the bandsmen will play better than they ever played before. The concert program—7 to 8 o'clock, remember—will be as follows:

March, Stars and Stripes Forever.....Sousa
Overture, William Tell.....Rossini
Intermezzo, Italian Silk Months.....Brooks
Intermezzo, Italian Silk Months.....Brooks
Excerpts from Irene.....Tierney
Songs of Uncle Sam.....Bonner

Warner will call the meeting to order and introduce as the first speaker one of the great and stalwart and discerning Americans of the United States from whom in the latest crisis to confront the Republic, placed country above party and with all his might opposed the Wilson idea of a League of Nations.

The Speaker of the Massachusetts House will get no further than the name of "James A. Reed, of Missouri" before the roof begins to lift. Reed will get One Reception.

Along about 9 o'clock we may expect to hear more in the same spirit from the Hon. Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma, famous as the "blind Senator." After Senator Gore, Senator Walsh will be heard, and following the Clintonian the Hon. John H. Bartlett, Governor of New Hampshire.

It is no exaggeration to say that no more brilliant oratorical program has been offered to the men and women of Greater Boston in many years than the bill which brings Reed, Gore, Walsh and Bartlett together in the same evening.

MISS HAMLIN TO SING.

The musical program, however, can scarcely be categorized as oratorical in its appeal. On this edition will be found the words of three songs which will be sung by the immense audience in one great chorus.

Suggestion that the audience sing these songs is made by Miss Grace Hamlin, famous Boston soprano, who will be the soloist of the evening.

"It appears to me," Miss Hamlin says, "that hereafter no patriotic meeting in America can be complete by powerful unless American audiences sing in chorus the songs which American claims for its very own.

"The 'America First' Thanksgiving will be all the livelier, all the happier, if more enthusiastic for an old-fashioned community 'sing.' All together!"

Little is left to be said. Tonight's the night! Mechanics Hall, in Mechanics Building, Huntington avenue, three minutes from Copley square. No admission fee. Public invited. No favoritism. No reserved seats.

Doors open at 7. Band concert (as above), 7 to 8. Speaking begins at 8 o'clock. Reed, Gore, Walsh, Bartlett.

A meeting of Americans, for Americans, by Americans!

YOUR meeting!

Come!

Deny U. S. Is Granting Credits

London, Nov. 26.—The German government has issued a denial of persistent reports from New York that the United States is granting Germany $4,000,000 in credits for the purchase of food and raw materials, said an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen today.

ASKS $5,0000

Mrs. Osborne Daniels of Springfield and her father, Rev. Arthur F. Underhill, D. D., of Northampton.

Springfield, Nov. 26.—Local society is looking forward to the trial of the suit brought by pretty Marguerite Daniels, the twenty-four-year-old daughter of Rev. Arthur F. Underhill, D.D., rector of the fashionable St. John's Episcopal Church at Northampton, against her mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary E. Daniels for $50,000 for alienation of her husbands affections.

At the trial of her husband for abandonment, the younger Mrs. Daniels told the court how her husband, Osborne Daniels, ex-army flier, real estate and insurance man of No. 8 Kenwood park and a member of one of the wealthiest of Springfield families, had left her and her baby to starve while he roamed about the country gaining more and renown by exhibition flying. For days, she declared, she and her child lived on scraps of food and milk.

She blames her mother-in-law in large part for the break up of her home. Both young people are members of Springfield's exclusive set.

OFFICER SHOOTS BOY IN FIGHT

Roxbury Reserves Called to Assist Patrolman Attacked by Trio in Cafe

One man was shot and two others were arrested in a bitter hand-to-hand fight between the trio and a patrolman of the Dudley street station in a cafe at No. 2066 Washington street, Roxbury.

Peter Maher, aged eighteen, who gives his address as No. 1598 Columbus avenue, Roxbury, is at the City Hospital with a shattered knee, caused by a bullet from the officer's revolver.

Patrick J. Danahy, aged twenty, of Heath street, and James J. Taylor, aged twenty-eight, of No. 4a Sumner place, both of Roxbury, are under arrest, charged with assault on Patrolman Fortin of the Dudley street station.

Taylor received an ugly scalp wound in the fight.

Patrolman Fortin, who was called to the cafe to quell a disturbance, says that when he attempted to enter the establishment, which is situated on the second floor, he was thrown down the stairs by one of the three men. Drawing his club, he again mounted the stairs and was met by Taylor at the top and during a struggle struck him on the head with his club.

Danahy then wrested the club away from him, the officer declares. As the trio was about to close in on him he drew his revolver and fired, the bullet striking Maher on the leg below the knee and shattering the bone.

Patrolman Montier, also of the Dudley street station, was attracted to the scene by the large crowd that gathered outside the cafe following the shot. He fired a shot in the air to attract the attention of brother officers. When the police reserves arrived the three men were placed under arrest.

WAR TABLET UNVEILED IN BROOKLINE CHURCH

A bronze memorial tablet was set in place and dedicated in the vestibule of the Church of St. Mary's of the Assumption, Brookline, in honor of the service men in the parish who gave their lives during the war, and the late Rev. John F. Sheehan, assistant pastor. The tablet was presented by the Women's Catholic Aid Society, of which Father Sheehan was spiritual director.

TROLLEY CAR LANDS ON BRAINTREE LAWN

A one-man car operated by Joseph Duffy of Quincy landed on the lawn of P. W. Pierrey's residence, at Washington and River streets, Braintree, after jumping the track and tearing down ten feet of stone wall.

The car was empty. Motorman Duffy was slightly cut by broken glass.

REPORT 'REDS' SEIZE VILNA

Battle Impending with League Force of 2,000 Sent to Guard Lithuanian Capital

Paris, Nov. 26.—It is reported here on what is considered most reliable information that Bolshevik forces have occupied Vilna, preceding the new army of the League of Nations into the district. It is said that the Red army has been sent to Vilna in an attempt to force a new war upon Poland.

Important forces of the Bolsheviki are reported to have been massed east of Vilna.

Geneva, Nov. 26.—An armed conflict between the League of Nations' toy army of 2,000 men and the Russian forces, as forecasted from Geneva this week as an inevitable consequence of the dispatch of the league's International troops to Vilna is impending.

It is officially announced that the Soviets have notified the Lithuanian government that the Red generalissimo has been instructed to occupy Vilna forthwith.

While the Soviets' move is not a violation of the Riga treaty, inasmuch as Vilna is not a part of Polish territory, it has created a novel situation in Europe—one involving a possible war with Russia, both Spain and Switzerland, who were neutral throughout the world conflict.

Lobby critics today were freely declaring that the league, instead of being a clearing house for world disputes, has actually revealed itself as the world's greatest trouble maker.

At the same time, Barnes, British laborite representative, who warned the league to cease its bickering over individual trade advantages and focus its immediate attention on the impending war between Poland and Russia, has received quick confirmation of his view of the situation by the turn in events.

The position of the league's commissioners and army at Vilna both of which were sent there to supervise the plebiscite which France hopes will result in favor of Poland, is today considered extremely precarious. Lobbyists commented that the assembly might be obliged to countermand the dispatch of the league's army and to recall the commissioners, in order to prevent them from being taken as hostages or war prisoners by the victorious Russian troops.

Political recognition of Russia by all European governments is the constant demand of a number of a few weeks only.

Premier Giolitti, altogether in favor of such a measure, has already dispatched a diplomatic representative to Moscow, while he will go to London in a few days to arrange final details for consented diplomatic relations by big powers preliminative to the recognition of the Soviets. Thus the British policy of playing hay while the sun shines, otherwise taking advantage of the last months of the declining Wilson administration in order to weld the powers of Europe into an unshakable front, united politically, economically and to triumph.

Members of the League of Nations today do not attempt to conceal their hope that the United States will agree to act as arbiter between Mustapha Kemal and the Armenians as begged in a cablegram that was sent from Geneva to Washington tonight. Their hope is largely based on the desire to thus trap the United States into the conflict which is raging between French and British interest over the Near East, France is hoping to control the Near East by backing the Turks to regain their former empire, while England is trusting to gain the same end by sustaining the Greeks and Russians.

WOMAN WALKS TO STATION WITH MYSTERIOUS WOUND

Mrs. Annie Pasek, aged sixty-six, of No. 99 Warwick street, Roxbury, suffering from a severe scalp wound, walked into the Roxbury Crossing police station last night and asked for assistance. She was unable to tell how she sustained the injury.

She refused to be taken to the City Hospital and was taken home and a physician called, who attended her taken to the hospital despite her protests.

Urge Harding to Stay in Washington

Washington, Nov. 26.—President-elect Harding will not go to Marion upon returning from Panama, but will spend his entire Winter in Washington, if he accepts the advice of his closest senatorial friends and other Republican leaders, it became known here.

It is pointed out that the President-elect has already announced his intention of holding frequent conferences with senatorial leaders, prior to his inauguration. This would mean many long trips for the conferees if headquarters were in Marion.

Senator Harding's original objection to spending the Winter in Washington is understood to be a fear that he will have too many callers, such as office seekers and voluntary advisers, that he will not have sufficient time for imperative work.

Man, 100, Recovering After Operation

New York, Nov. 26.—In the home of the sons and Daughters of Israel, No. 232 East Tenth street, Chaim Weiss, who is 100 years old, is recovering from an operation performed a week ago for the removal of tubercular tissues.

The operation, according to doctors, is serious even for a man in the prime of life, but the aged Israelite is on the road to recovery. He has been an inmate of the home for five years, and he said today that he felt better than he has at any time for the past ten years.

Songs for 'America First' Rally at Mechanics Hall Tonight

(Take the words of these three inspiring songs with you to the rally tonight and sing them under the leadership of Miss Grace Hamlin.)

THE STAR-SPANGLED BANNER

Oh, say can you see by the dawn's early light
What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming,
Whose broad stripes and bright stars thro' the perilous fight,
O'er the ramparts we watch'd were so gallantly streaming?
And the rockets red glare, the bombs bursting in air
Gave proof thro' the night that our flag was still there.

CHORUS:

Oh, say does that star-spangled banner yet wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

On the shore dimly seen thro' the mists of the deep,
Where the foe's haughty host in dread silence reposes,
What is that which the breeze, o'er the towering steep,
As it fitfully blows, half conceals, half discloses?
Now it catches the gleam of the morning's first beam,
In full glory reflected now shines on the stream.

CHORUS:

'Tis the star-spangled banner, Oh, long may it wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!

Oh, thus be it ever when free men shall stand
Between their loved homes and the war's desolation;
Blest with vict'ry and peace, may the heav'n rescued land
Praise the Pow'r that hath made and preserved us a nation!
Then conquer we must, when our cause it is just,
And this be our motto, "In God Is Our Trust!"

CHORUS:

And the star-spangled banner in triumph shall wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

BATTLE HYMN OF THE REPUBLIC

Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord:
He is trampling out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored;
He hath loosed the fateful lightning of His terrible swift sword;
His truth is marching on.

I have seen Him in the watch-fires of a hundred circling camps;
They have builded Him an altar in the evening dews and damps;
I have read His righteous sentence by the dim and flaring lamps.
His day is marching on.

I have read a fiery gospel, writ in burnished rows of steel;
"As ye deal with My contemners, so with you My grace shall deal;
Let the Hero, born of woman, crush the serpent with his heel."
Since God is marching on.

He has sounded forth the trumpet that shall never call retreat;
He is sifting out the hearts of men before His judgment seat;
Oh! be swift, my soul, to answer Him; be jubilant, my feet!
Our God is marching on.

In the beauty of the lilies Christ was born across the sea;
With a glory in His bosom that transfigures you and me.
As He died to make men holy, let us die to make men free,
While God is marching on.

THERE'S A LONG, LONG TRAIL.

Nights are growing very lonely,
Days are very long;
I'm a-growing weary only
List'ning for your song.
Old remembrances are thronging
Through my memory,
Till it seems the world is full of dreams,
Just to call you back to me.

CHORUS.

There's a long, long trail a-winding
Into the land of dreams,
Where the nightingales are singing
And a white moon beams.
There's a long, long night of waiting,
Until my dreams all come true;
Till the day when I'll be going down
That long, long trail with you.

All night long I hear you calling,
Calling sweet and low;
Seem to hear your footsteps falling
Everywhere I go,
Though the road between us stretches
Many a weary mile,
I forget that you're not with me yet,
When I think I see you smile.

CHORUS.

Baked Bean Now Has-Been at Wellesley

Said the walrus to the carpenter, "Let us strike for many things,
For ships and shoes and sealing wax and cabbages and kings.
(MODERN VERSION)

But this time it's a Wellesley baked bean strike. Wellesley Girls will be original. Of course it isn't a real strike—only a polite exodus to the tea room on Saturday noon, which is the time for the traditional baked bean luncheon. The girls simply won't have 'em, not even the cultured Boston variety.

"An Irishman could no more cook spaghetti to suit an Italian than a Frenchman could mix a highball to suit a Scotchman," they cry indignantly. "Likewise only our grandmothers can cook baked beans to suit us; they complete the analogy still more indignantly.

"None but New England grandmothers can bake them to suit anybody," insists the New England girls.

"Some like beans browned with much molasses, some like 'em with onions and others with pork. The whole trouble is that baked beans have as many provincial possibilities as there are sections of the country and universe represented at Wellesley. There is national mince pie, but there is Northern, Southern, Western and New England baked beans," proclaims the Wellesley girl. "We want only our grandmothers to cook 'em."

So the little foreign girls at the college, who are bewildered by foreign food anyway, wonder what it is all about, and the bean himself burns to a crisp black in utter helplessness and mortification.

LAWRENCE MILLS TO KEEP OPEN

Official of U. S. Worcester Company Denies Complete Shutdown Is Considered

Although only 30 per cent. of their employes are at work, and those on a part time basis, that condition will continue as long as business conditions permit, an official of the United States Worsted Company stated today.

A report that there was to be a complete shutdown of the Lawrence mills for an indefinite period was denied. The mills were closed for Thanksgiving holidays, but will be reopened Monday, this official said. "Future operations," he said, "will depend upon the extent of the period of depression in this industry.

"We are ready to run our mills on full time, or day and night, if conditions warrant it," he said, "but there is no guessing time ahead for new goods that we cannot sell.

"While the future of the business looks uncertain, we have not decided to curtail any more than we have already. For the present we will continue on the part time schedule."

PORTLAND RESTAURANT FIRE MENACES HOTEL

Portland, Me., Nov. 26.—Fire in a new Chinese restaurant on Congress street gave the guests at the Congress Square Hotel an early Thanksgiving morning scare, smoke filling the lower part of the hotel, causing occupants of rooms to dress hastily. The flames were confined to the restaurant, however, which was damaged to the extent of $10,000.

Three Million Dollars is needed to make the liberal religion lived by Jefferson, Franklin, Lincoln, Susan B. Anthony, Emerson and Lowell known to every American and a vital part of their lives. Are you seeking a religion which in every way aims to square with human reason and intelligence and with facts and science?

Do You Know There Is Such a Religion?

A stenographer was employed last week to take down a sermon at a Unitarian Church. At the close of the service he said: "I left the churches a dozen years ago and worked out a religion of my own, and by George, if I wasn't surprised to hear it preached this morning! I've been a Unitarian for years and did not know it. I want to join your church."

BRITISH FLAG STILL FLIES

Floats From New York Union Club After Mob of 5,000 Stormed Building

By International News Service.

New York, Nov. 26.—The British Union Jack, along with the French Tricolor and the Stars and Stripes, flew defiantly from the upper windows of the Union Club on Fifth avenue today following the smashing of the club's windows yesterday by 5,000 rioting Irishmen.

The exclusive club was besieged by the first, enraged at the sight of the British flag, following a memorial service at St. Patrick's Cathedral in honor of Terence MacSwiney, the Lord Mayor of Cork, who died hunger striking for Ireland.

Order was not restored until 400 policemen had been hurried to the scene. Three of the rioters were arrested. Club officials explained they were ignorant of the MacSwiney memorial service and that the British flag was flown in honor of the anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims. There is no service in the Cathedral.

Monsignor Michael J. Lavelle, chancellor, two priests appeared on the Cathedral steps and begged the rioters "for the love of this country and for the love of Ireland, go home," but the answer was another volley of stones, clubs and cheap watches hurled at the building.

While the Irish sympathizers numbered hundreds, only a few were real and women, representing a "Cork organization," actually took part in the broke windows and attempted to fight their way into the club.

The precinct reserves were hard-pressed. Ten policemen were on guard at the club all night, but there was no further disorder.

HEARING ON REMOVAL OF SNOW DECEMBER 1

Whether removal of snow shall be given preference over other traffic will probably be decided at a hearing in the Mayor's office at City Hall, Wednesday, December 1, according to a communication received at a meeting of the Teamsters' Joint Council.

In accordance with the Mayor's request, John F. English, president of the council, and Timothy J. and Joseph J. Hunt were appointed to represent the council at the hearing. It is understood that similar communications have been sent to business men, steam and street railway executives and transportation experts in an effort to prevent as far as possible the crippling of traffic by snowstorms.

FRANCE REFUSES TO RECOGNIZE SOVIETS

Paris, Nov. 26.—Premier Leygues of France stated in a speech delivered today in the Chamber of Deputies that the government will authorize individuals to trade with Russia, but that the ministry will not recognize the Soviet government.

Leygues opposes an economic blockade of Russia and says that the recognition of the Orange government in South Russia ceased to be of effect with the defeat of the anti-Bolshevik forces.

FEDERAL WORKERS TO ASK PENSION ACT CHANGES

The advisory board, representing the various branches of the government workers in the arsenals, navy yards, custom houses and postoffices of New England, will hold a meeting tonight at No. 724 Washington street to map out a plan of campaign for changes in the present pension act passed by the last Congress. The report of the committee will be placed before the full body for final consideration.

DROPPED RING BETRAYS BRIDE

Secret Wedding of Show Girl and Boston Man Revealed by Accident

New York, Nov. 26.—Members of the "Rainbow Chorus" in "Pitter Patter," which is now playing at the Longacre Theatre, spent a busy day today congratulating Eileen Grenier on her marriage to George A. Ehrenfelder, former newspaper man of Boston and now scenario writer for a film company.

The wedding would still have been a secret had not Mrs. Ehrenfelder made a mistake while dancing the "Wedding Blues," one of the numbers in the show. The wedding ring bounced out of its hiding place in the girl's corsage and rolled out into public view in the centre of the stage, where it was observed by the other members of the company.

Mrs. Ehrenfelder is nineteen. Her first position on the stage was with the Schwyn "Among the Girls" company, which was playing in Boston.

On October 24 Miss Grenier was married to Mr. Ehrenfelder at "The Little Church Around the Corner." They had managed to keep the matter secret until today.

RESIGNATIONS WILL NOT HALT IRISH CONVENTION

Worcester, Nov. 26.—Depite defections from the ranks of the Friends of Irish Freedom, the State convention of the organization will be held in the Grand Theatre, Sunday, according to a telegram received in this city from the national secretary, Diarmid Lynch. John F. Hartigan of Worcester, who resigned as vice president of the Friends of Irish Freedom, says he will have nothing to do with the convention and stated that the thirty-five delegates of the McBride Branch in Lawrence will not attend the convention. Hartigan explained that he and other members who have resigned long upon Emon de Valera as the regularly constituted authority in Ireland's fight for freedom.

WEDS THE DUKE OF WESTMINSTER

London, Nov. 26.—The Duke of Westminster, one of the richest peers in Great Britain, and Mrs. Violet Nowell were married today at the registry office. Announcement of the engagement was made only yesterday.

The Duke was divorced by his wife, a daughter of Mrs. Cornwallis West, in 1919. He was granted a decree absolute in May of this year. Mrs. Nowell is the youngest daughter of Sir William Lockett, a director of the Union steamship line.

The wedding of the Duke of Westminster, the richest duke of the British Empire, recalls his unhappy marriage to the brilliant Duchess of Westminster, who now is plain Mrs. James Fitzpatrick Lewis, wife of a captain in the Royal Air Force and a plain business man in civilian life.

The Duke's physician was Pasteur.

STEAMER OAKLAND IN AFTER SLOW PASSAGE

After one of the slowest passages on record from Antwerp, the American steamer Oakland, Captain R. J. Sullivan, came into port and made fast to a berth at Pier 58 Mystic docks. Twenty-nine days were required to make the voyage, or twice as long as the ordinary time. The lengthy trip was due to a combination of bad weather, poor quality of coal and the final condition of the steamer's hull.

GIRL TELLS HOW PEIRCE DIED

'Blackjacked,' While Drunk, by Two Men, She Informs Philadelphia Police

By International News Service.

Philadelphia, Nov. 26.—Circumstances leading up to the slaying of Henry T. Peirce, wealthy manufacturer, were related in the City Hall detention quarters today by Marie Phillips, 18 years old, a former New York chorus girl, who was arrested at Wheeling, W. Va., with Peter D. Treadway, to whom she referred as "Hubby."

"Peirce was killed by two men whose names my Hubby (Treadway) told me were Al Smith and Jack," she said. "We didn't know Jack's other name.

"Neither of us had met Peirce until the night he was killed. We reached our home at 11:45 p.m. Saturday in the Smith and Jack were drunk and boisterous. So we decided to go out and get a drink rather than make a fuss in the house. We thought we would shake them at a saloon at Broad street and Fairmount avenue. They followed us there.

"Peirce was too drunk to obey and shook his fist in the hand with a blackjack in it. We walked down stairs and home.

"My baby was not as soon as he could. We were getting ready to go to bed when the other two men drove up to our door and asked if they were leaving Philadelphia and we would have to ride there, as we had been drinking as well as they, and if we wouldn't go with them they would force us to go.

While the police place little credence in the girl's version of the slaying, a search was instituted for the men she described.

SCHOONER ASHORE IN FOG

Provincetown, Nov. 26.—The three-masted schooner Ethel B. Haskell, bound from Boston to Newport News with coal, went ashore in the fog on Peaked Hill bar, off the Provincetown coast, early today. The vessel is not in danger, according to the life saving crew which boarded her.

WILSON PARDONS WHISKEY MAKER

Gives Freedom to Laborer Sent to Jail for Distilling in His Own Kitchen

Washington, Nov. 26.—In granting a pardon to John W. Schwenberg of Cincinnati President Wilson established a precedent which, it is predicted here, will go a long distance toward limiting the prosecution of persons found making beer or other intoxicants in their own homes for domestic consumption.

Schwenberg was recently sentenced to six months in the State penitentiary of Ohio for distilling whiskey from corn mash in his own kitchen. His case was appealed to President Wilson who granted a full pardon on the ground that Schwenberg was apparently making the liquor exclusively for his own use. That he was a laborer with a wife and four children who would suffer if he was confined in the penitentiary, and that his previous record had been that of an honest and reputable citizen.

"The President was entirely within his rights when he exercised his pardoning power in this case," said Prohibition Commissioner Kramer. "So far as the general rule and practice of the Internal Revenue Department is concerned, however, I wish to call attention to the fact that the prohibition law prohibits the 'manufacture, sale or transportation' of intoxicating liquor. The fact that whiskey is manufactured for personal use does not exempt the manufacturer from the operation of the law. Such has been the practice of the Department and the ruling of Commissioner Willis on several occasions."

To Talk on Australia

Mark Sheldon, commissioner for the Commonwealth of Australia to the United States, will speak in the Harvard Union next Tuesday evening at 8. His subject will be "Australian Problems," with special reference to the labor situation.

GOVERNOR-ELECT COX AT FAMILY REUNION

Manchester, N. H., Nov. 26.—Former Alderman Charles E. Cox entertained his four sons according to the annual custom at his home on North Elm street yesterday. The occasion was made complete by the unexpected and late arrival of Walter Cox.

The party included besides Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Cox, the parents of the distinguished family, Governor-Elect Channing H. Cox of Boston, Mrs. Cox and their daughter, Nancy, Guy W. Cox of Boston, Mr. and Mrs. Louis S. Cox, son, Randall, and daughter, Dorothy, of Lawrence; Walter Cox of Indianapolis; Miss Violet Johnson of Plainfield, Pa., and Mrs. Fiske of Boston.

RAYMOND'S

The expensive Overcoats we letem have last week for Twenty-five Dollars sure started somethin

'Member the story last summer 'bout our 2.00 Straw Hats bein marked 4.00 20% off in a New York discount sale, 'member the lawn mower bein doctored for the purpose, 'member the feller in Detroit, when I tole him couldn't see how he could sell stuff at sech prices, and he said "don't pay any attention to the prices—they're fixed for the sale," 'member how some of the benevolent emporiums used to give yer 50c for yer ole hat, 'member when we offered yer 10.00 for yer ole hat but you must pay us 10.95 for one of our regular Ninetyfivecenters, 'member all this stuff don't yer? Wal while the boys was cross fitein like the devil to save us from the Huns an we's all stayin home makin money at their expense, t'want necessary to try any of these schemes to get business, but now tiz different, boys saved us an are back and sted of a bonus bill, its a swift kick forem, (aint it a darn shame?) An sted of easy business its scheming an hustlin, so the discount season is wide open an you can get most anythin you want now thout payin hardly anythin for it in most every place 'cept Raymond's. Funny aint it ???

Which would you rather, pay 35.00 or 40.00—a quarter or a third off, or 20.00 nothin off?

Which would you rather, pay 45.00 or 50.00—a quarter or a third off, or 25.00 nuthin off?

Which would you rather, pay 60.00—a quarter or a third off, or 35.00 nuthin off?

Which would you rather, pay 75.00 or 80.00—a quarter or a third off, or 45.00 nuthin off?

Course if its discount you want, keep outter here—but if its Clothing you want, 'thout any schemin or hot air, you can come here an get it.

War Veterans Call U. S. Women 'Cold'

Paris, Nov. 26.—Dr. Lucien Carnot created a sensation a few months ago by making an appeal for "maternity volunteers," for girls who would volunteer to bear children for France, in and out of wedlock, to make up for the loss of man power by the war.

Not very many women responded.

to Dr. Carnot's appeal, but innumerable would-be-husbands for French girls replied from the other side of the ocean. So great was the avalanche of letters received by Dr. Carnot from American, Canadian and Australian men, most of whom fought in France, that he now seriously considers the possibility of forming some sort of official bureau to provide for the marriage of French girls with foreigners.

Dr. Carnot gives below a few of the reasons which make American men want French wives.

By DR. LUCIEN CARNOT.
Professor of the Faculty of Medicine, Paris.

Every day the postman brings me a batch of letters from men who want to marry French girls and who, having no connections in France, imagine that I can help them settle their matrimonial affairs.

Most of these letters are from Americans, and while they all interest me I must confess I am particularly attracted by letters from ex-soldiers, because they know French girls and are familiar with our ways. Many correspondents seem, for the most part, to be men of the middle or perhaps lower classes, although some are obviously of superior education and position.

But whether the request for a French wife is written on the rough paper of some distant lumber camp or on the heavy stationery of a metropolitan club, the grievances expressed by the writers are practically the same. They may be divided roughly into four groups which, I think, could be condensed into one rebelling against the American woman's independence and love of freedom.

BLAME U. S. WOMEN.

I must say the letters surprised me from what I had heard about the American woman. Whether I ever having been in the United States, I imagined she was looked upon as a sort of goddess, and I sincerely believed that the American man would not want to change her, if he could.

I have my doubts about this, now. For all the letters I have received, especially from men who have been in France, are full of embittered criticism.

Almost all my correspondents say they wish to marry French girls because American women don't want children. This statement coming from so many people in so many different layers of society surprised me immensely.

We, in France, usually blame our women for the decreasing birthrate of our country, and it had never occurred to me that the same blame could be extended to American women. I thought that American women were fond of children; but according to my letters, it would seem as if they do not want to be mothers.

"I want to marry to have a home and found a family and not to get a woman," one man plainly puts it. "I would be a good father and a good provider, but I couldn't remain faithful to a woman unless I were bound to her by stronger ties than those of passion or even love," writes another.

CALL YANKEE GIRLS COLD.

Secondly, American men seem to want to marry French girls because they believe the latter more homeloving. "The American women have no feeling of home," one man says. "A man marries one day and finds himself divorced the next. The American woman does not feel bound to either home or children. Family or home ties are not sacred to her."

Innumerable complaints, too, find expression in regard to the "cold nature" or "lack of temperament" of the American woman. The French woman, according to most of my correspondents who have been in France, is loving, affectionate. "She likes to be with a man, likes him in every way, gives herself up to him as an American never does. The American woman feels she is bestowing a favor if she condescends to love a man. The French girls is genuinely happy to be loved. This makes her company more pleasing," as one man explains it.

WILSON HAS RESTFUL THANKSGIVING DAY

Washington, Nov. 26.—President Wilson spent Thanksgiving Day quietly. For two hours in the afternoon he reclined on the south portico of the White House and examined his mail, which included a number of congratulatory telegrams from friends and admirers.

Last night he enjoyed Thanksgiving dinner in company with his immediate family. These included Mrs. Bolling, mother of Mrs. Wilson; Miss Bertha Bolling, sister of Mrs. Wilson, and her three brothers, Richard W. Bolling, treasurer of the Shipping Board; Julian Bolling, and John Randolph Bolling. A nephew of Mrs. Wilson, Miss Lucy Maury, of Roanoke, was also present.

Vose Small Grand

The high aims and ideals of the House of Vose, makers of fine pianos for nearly three-quarters of a century, have been attained in this beautiful instrument—a product for those who have a fine regard for quality.

Words cannot fittingly describe it—it must be seen and heard to realize its artistic beauty, its delightful Vose tone, and its wonderful measure of volume.

Before deciding upon the make you are going to purchase, do yourself the justice of comparing this piano with the others that you have already included in your consideration.

This model is for the music or living room of limited floor space. It gives the artistic touch to the home.

"Linoleum for Every Room in the House"

The slogan, "Linoleum for Every Room in the House," originated by us, and now being used extensively in one form or another to direct public attention to the many advantages of Linoleum as a floor covering, finds an expression in our model suite of rooms (newly furnished). We direct particular attention to the Reception Hall as an illustration of the floor covering possibilities, it being a reproduction of an old Italian Cathedral floor "Tessellated," and one of many architectural designs we are showing of this thoroughly sanitary floor covering. We import direct, and are receiving daily additions to our stock of both foreign and domestic goods. Our facilities are such that we can supply every need.

New York, Nov. 26.—John F. Moss, president of the Printing Press and Feeders' Union, estimates that a living wage for a family of five in New York is now $2,632.68. The estimate was made in connection with a demand for an increase in wages in the printing trade. He itemized the expenditures as follows: Food, $871.80; clothing, $479.84; rent, $427.25; light and heat, $68.59; household equipment, $68.22; miscellaneous, $835.76.

THREE ESCAPED AMERICAN CONVICTS ALARM FRENCH

Paris, Nov. 26.—The population of Cherbourg is living in terror following the escape of seven American soldiers from the steamship Pocahontas, who were being returned to the United States under sentence to heavy prison sentences. The men escaped by enlarging a porthole and jumping into the water. They reached land four hours later and four of them were captured. Three of the most desperate characters are still at large. They were last seen at a point sixteen miles from Cherbourg, where they knocked down a farmer in order to get food.

COLBY HINTS AT BRITISH FRAUD

Warns England in Note Against Exclusion of United States from Oil Territories

Washington, Nov. 26. — Secretary Colby's note to Great Britain on Mesopotamia just made public here reveals the startling fact that the British nation has completed plans to exclude the United States from any participation whatsoever in the resources of all mandate territory throughout the world on the ground that this government is not a member of the League of Nations.

Protesting that the United States as a contributor to the success of he war "cannot be debarred from the discussion of any of its consequences," Secretary Colby in his note demands "that the draft mandate forms, particularly those of Mesopotamia and Palestine, which have been kept secret, be communicated to this government for its consideration before their submission to the Council of the League of Nations."

In his note, which is regarded as the most important as well as one of the ablest sent out by this government since the armistice, Secretary Colby strongly hints that Great Britain is guilty of the most flagrant duplicity in Mesopotamia.

"This government," he states, "finds difficulty in reconciling the special arrangement set forth in the so-called San Remo petroleum agreement" (by which Great Britain took 75 per cent, to France's 25), "with your statement that the petroleum resources of Mesopotamia will be secured to the future Arab State as yet unformed.

"Furthermore it is difficult to harmonize that special arrangements with your statement that concessionary claims relating to those resources still remain in their pre-war position, and have yet to receive, with the establishment of the Arab State, the equitable consideration promised by his majesty's government.

"In view of your assurance that it is not the intention of the mandatory powers to establish on its own behalf any kind of monopoly, I am at a loss to know how to construe the provisions of the San Remo agreement, that any private petroleum company which may develop the Mesopotamian oil fields 'shall be under permanent British control.'"

BOSTON SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

By SARA ORCUTT.

Mrs. James B. Forsyth is spending this week in Boston. She motored over from New York. Mrs. Forsyth has made New York her home the past three years but she belongs to Boston. During her stay here she will be at the Copley-Plaza.

SCIENCE CASE TO FULL BENCH

Entire Controversy to Be Reviewed by Supreme Court; Hughes to Appear

Every possible angle of the Christian Science controversy will be presented to Chief Justice Rugg and Associate Justices De Courcy, Crosby, Carroll and Jenney, who sitting as the full bench of the Supreme Court, will listen to arguments on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

Although twenty-eight attorneys appear as counsel in the record, the principal arguments will be made by Charles E. Hughes of New York, and Sherman L. Whipple for the trustees of the Christian Science Publishing Society, former Governor John L. Bates for the directors of the Christian Science Church; William G. Thompson for John V. Dittemore, deposed director; Charles F. Choate, Jr., for Mrs. Emilie B. Hulin of Brookiyn, N. Y., who as a First Member of the Mother Church, seeks to be restored to rights which such members once enjoyed, and Frederick H. Chase, who resigned as a judge of the Superior Court, representing other interests that may be affected by the decision of the court.

ASKED ALL SUITS BE TRIED.

The suit of the trustees of the Publishing Society against the directors of the Church, known as Eustace et al vs. Dickey et al, in which the plaintiffs ask the court to enjoin the directors from interfering with the affairs of the publishing society, comes first on the docket.

All the evidence in that case which required months to offer was heard by former Judge Frederick Dodge of the United States Circuit Court, who was appointed Master by Judge Loring in the early Summer of 1918. The report of Judge Dodge favors the contention of the trustees that they are independent of any control by the directors. Judge Dodge also found that Mr. Dittemore was illegally removed from the board of directors.

When the report of Judge Dodge came before Judge Pierce for action the directors made every effort to have it recommitted, but the report was confirmed by Judge Pierce, and exceptions taken to his decree by the directors brings the matter to the full bench for final determination.

Attorney-General J. Weston Allen, who brought a bill in equity in which he asked that the First Church of Christ, Scientist, known as the Mother Church, be declared a public charitable trust, organized and existing under the usage and discipline of said church, as set forth in its manual, for the promotion and extension of the religion of Christian Science.

Mr. Allen further asks that all issues raised in the other suits be tried. The multiplicity of suits, he said, will result in great waste of the substance of the dominant charitable trust, the Mother church, and to the subsidiary trust, which included the profits on periodicals issued by the publishing society for the benefit of the church.

MRS. HULIN'S SUIT.

He. Allen, also asserted that the directors are the governing body of the church, and have power to declare vacancies in the trusteeships of the publishing society and determine what literature shall be published.

If the powers vested in the directors have become ineffective, the Attorney-general wants the court to apply the doctrine of cy pres and restore the functions they formerly exercised.

The stand taken by the attorney-general is probably the outcome of a finding by Judge Dodge that the Christian Science Church is not legally incorporated, but is only a voluntary religious association, and the directors have not the powers conferred by law upon deacons and wardens of incorporated churches.

The only powers the directors have, in the opinion of Judge Dodge, they derive from a deed of trust made by Mrs. Eddy, under which they were appointed.

Mrs. Hulin's petition to intervene in the suit of the trustees against the directors, which was denied by Judge Pierce, asserts her right as a First Member to present evidence in support of her claim that the Manual is the supreme law of the Mother Church; that in all respects of final authority over all members of that church, including the First Members and the trustees of the publishing society, the Manual controls; and that it controls the provisions of all deeds of trust and other written instruments of Mrs. Eddy.

SERIOUSLY INJURED BY FALL IN ARLINGTON

John J. Kenna of No. 52 Palmer street, Arlington, is in a serious condition at the Symmes Arlington Hospital, as the result of a fall while at work at the Walter K. Hutchinson Company store on Massachusetts avenue, Arlington. Mr. Kenna went out onto the loading platform, and probably slipped on the boards, falling into the cellarway. It was found he had a probable fracture of the skull and internal injuries.

LIEUTENANT RYAN DIES FROM EFFECTS OF WAR

New York, Nov. 26.—Joseph J. Ryan, aged thirty, youngest son of Thomas Fortune Ryan, who has been a sufferer from rheumatism and a nerve affection since his return from France a year and a half ago after service with a base hospital unit during the war, died in his rooms at the Ansonia Hotel.

Lieutenant Ryan was well known as an automobilist, winning many wagers by daring driving. He was married in 1916 in Baltimore to Miss Nannie Morse, daughter of a Washington lawyer.

NEED TRUCKS IN PAPER DRIVE FOR CHILDREN

The waste paper campaign for the campaign for the Children's Hospital and Convalescent Home has fairly smothered the endowment committee in charge with tons of paper, and today the great need is trucks with which to handle it. Among the firms which have loaned trucks to aid the kiddies are Curtis & Crosston, Foulden, Smith & Hopkins, Fifield, Richardson & Co., Richards & Co., F. W. Dunn, A. A. Rowe, Berry Tibbetts, W. F. Cobb, C. Bowen and the Rowe Construction Company. The campaign will continue for several days.

G. O. P. CANDIDATES WON IN VERMONT FOUR TO ONE

Montpelier, Vt., Nov. 26.—Republican candidates for Governor and United States Senator polled nearly four times as many votes as their Democratic opponents in the recent election, according to unofficial figures announced here by the Secretary of State. James Hartness, Republican, polled 70,416 votes; Fred Martin, Democrat, 18,895. Under the Prohibition party label Hartness received 1173 additional votes and there were 171 scattering votes. The total was 53,094.

All sizes at this price,
But not all sizes in each style.
All have French Heels.
Tan, Black Kid,
Brown Kid,
Grey Kid,
On popular lasts.
All new and fresh.

The Facts As They Are—

THESE Boots represent the orders returned by stores throughout the country to the manufacturer because of late delivery. They were originally made by a well known manufacturer to sell at 10.00, 12.00 and 14.00, and the quality of workmanship and quality of leather are representative of fine Boots selling at those prices. The wear and the perfect fitting qualities are there.

It is only because of the facts—that the 3.85 Boots have French heels—that the 5.85 Boots in some cases are in colors not in general demand—that the sizes in each style are broken—that they are now being sold at so tremendous a reduction. Of course your size is here in many of the styles you will like.

At these new prices this is a remarkable offering in which every woman has the opportunity of finding Boots which fit perfectly, which will wear wonderfully and which relieve her of the necessity for several pairs of Boots for the coming winter.

LEAGUE VOTES AUSTRIA IN

Is Victory for Morgan Interests; Bulgaria Is Denied Admittance

Geneva, Nov. 26.—The House of Morgan won a victory in the Council of the League of Nations today when it voted in favor of admitting Austria to membership in the League.

It had been expected that the Austrian application would be associated with the application of Bulgaria, but the Council decided to consider the latter country's application at a later date when the Council and Assembly of the League meet in March next.

The decision to admit Austria has caused a great deal of comment here, as it is considered a victory for the House of Morgan, which has been the chief opponent of admitting Austria to membership in the League.

The Council of the League, which is composed of representatives of France, Great Britain, Italy, Japan and Belgium, met today for the first time since the League Assembly adjourned.

Christmas Fund of Boston Tuberculosis Association Expected to Break Record

Determined to break all previous records, scores of workers started selling Christmas Health Seals today. Every effort will be made to exceed the quota set for Boston, owing to the increasing need of the Boston Tuberculosis Association for greater funds.

All money gained from the sale will be an important factor in fighting the ravages of the plague by the Massachusetts Tuberculosis League through its various organizations.

A number of large business houses will again follow the example of previous years in placing seals on letters and packages sent out. Practically all of the best known concerns in Boston bought in wholesale quantities from workers at various stations of the business district early this morning.

The seals are the same as in other years. They are in the form of a stamp and are designed to be pasted on the backs of cards or letters and packages.

Workers or health boards will be given to those who want to help in large numbers but do not care to attend.

VOTE IN SOUTH CHEERS G.O.P.

Politicians Believe That Democracy's Stronghold Will Never Be 'Solid' Again

Republican leaders here are jubilant over the reports showing that the "solid south" for a generation to come is dead. Despite reports to have been broken at the late election, [illegible]

"It will never [illegible] again," said one local politician, pointing out that [illegible] Democratic vote to Harding and that other states reduced their [illegible] majorities, but it was much [illegible] cross to the republican [illegible] from the southern states [illegible] beyond all expectations.

For years the Republican party's national committee has financed the fight in the southern states needed to keep the party control on the ballot, but this year the figures show that voluntary contributions in the Solid South in many instances exceed those raised in Northern states.

In nearly every instance the figures at hand, though unofficial, show a marked decrease in the Democratic vote, even though the women's vote had been expected to materially increase, if not double, the Democratic figures of past years. The following comparative table [illegible] vote went in all the Southern States:

State	1916	1920
Alabama	[illegible]	[illegible]

MIDDLESEX CLUB'S FOX HUNT, DEC. 11

The Middlesex Sportman's Association will hold its annual fox hunt at Bedford, Saturday, December 11. Headquarters during the day will be at the Bedford Inn, and arrangements have been made to take care of an overflow at the Paul Revere Tavern in Lexington. The hunt will start at 6.45 a.m. After the hunt the sportsmen will be driven to the new home of the association, recently purchased from the Arlington Boat Club, where at 6 p.m. a dinner will be served, followed by a general meeting of the association. The members of the Arlington Boat Club will be taken into the association as a body.

CAPTAIN PARRY GIVEN CUP FOR HEROISM AT SEA

Captain John Parry of the Leyland line steamship Oxonian, now at East Boston, was presented with a silver loving cup at Liverpool on November 6, the gift of the British government, for his rescue under heroic and difficult circumstances of the crew of the American steamer Bradbourne in mid Atlantic during a terrific gale on February 6 last.

MAN COMMITS SUICIDE IN NORTH ADAMS HOME

North Adams, Nov. 26.—Closing all openings in the kitchen of his home, Wright Moorehouse, aged fifty, of No. 23 Banks street, committed suicide by turning on all the jets in the gas range. His dead body was found by Albert Spencer, a farmer. A widow survives him.

Grandma is Still a Girl

Time has silvered her hair. Perhaps it has slowed her brisk step a bit. But she still loves "pretties" as much as she did when grandfather bought her that quaint old locket she treasures so tenderly.

So don't think of "something useful" for grandmother this Christmas. Useful gifts are sensible, but she would enjoy possessing something which she would not buy for herself. Choose a gift that will gladden her eye as well as her heart.

We have dainty pins of diamonds or pearls for the lace at her throat; squat tea caddies to glisten on her tea table; a bag of brocade that recalls the reticules of her girlhood; charming novelties of silver, brass or enamel for her desk—for grandmother has the old-fashioned virtue of answering her letters.

For a hundred and twenty years we have advised the selection of many Christmas gifts. We shall hope to help you with yours this season. We urge you to make your selections as soon as possible. We expect to please many people with what we have to offer, and we know that it will be hard to obtain duplicates of most of our stock.

IS MARRIAGE A SUCCESS? HERE'S WHAT OUR READERS SAY

CONGRATULATES "SIXTEEN"

Dear Marriage Editor: Am a reader of the Boston American and have been for a long time. I think your page is a success. If there were more letters like those in the issue of Nov. 7 there would be fewer divorces. Marriage is a success when both husband and wife have the right spirit. I was married three years ago and have been happy all the time. We have had our little troubles, but we have always settled them before we went to bed. We have never had any trouble about money matters, as we have always had enough to live on. We have never had any trouble about my mother-in-law, as she lives with her own daughter. My wife and I are very fond of dancing and we go to dances almost every night. We have a little girl two years old and she is the joy of our home. We have never had any trouble about her, as we have always had a nurse for her. We have a nice home and are very happy. I would like to hear from some of the readers of your page. I am twenty-three years old and my wife is twenty-two. Hoping to see this in print, I remain,

A HAPPY HUSBAND.

WILSON TO DROP FIGHT FOR TREATY

Washington, Nov. 26—Unless his mind undergoes a complete change, President Wilson will not resubmit the treaty of Versailles during the coming session of congress, it was learned today. The flat rejection of the league in the solemn referendum of the elections, it is believed, has finally convinced the President of the complete futility of any other course.

"DANDERINE"

Girls! Save Your Hair! Make It Abundant!

Immediately after a "Danderine" massage, your hair takes on new life, lustre and wondrous beauty, appearing twice as heavy and plentiful because each hair seems to fluff and thicken. Don't let your hair stay lifeless, colorless, plain or straggly. You, too, want lots of long, strong, beautiful hair.

A 35-cent bottle of delightful "Danderine" freshens your scalp, checks dandruff and all hair itch. Its stimulating "tonic-like" gives to thin, dull, fading hair that youthful brightness and abundant fullness.—All druggists!

HARDING HEARS CANAL APPEALS

Jap Menace, Labor Trouble and Colon Protest Brought Before Him

Panama, Panama, Nov. 26—Fears for the safety of the Republic of Panama and the Panama canal in the event of Japanese hostilities, internal Panamanian politics, a vigorous protest on behalf of Colon against the alleged encroachments by the United States on Panamanian territory, industrial and race relations in the zone, for some the question of tolls as it affects the canal defenses and a score of minor matters of local importance were considered when President Harding met Panamanian officials on board the Zone.

750 SIGN PROTEST.

Most of the fear of Senator Harding at Colon seems to be without foundation. Less than the 750 protest which was published in a printed memorial and said by 7,000 persons, and the labor question, a delegation seeking the interview to urge increased wages, the betterment of working conditions, lower prices at the commissaries and adequate housing.

The people here are not content to make it worse.

Talk of the Japanese menace is rife in the canal zone. It is most important. It is believed here, that if a naval battle should occur between the United States and Japan, the latter would try to seize the canal at the outset of the war. It is held that it has not the strength to hold for the strategic point for the strongest sort of defense.

The question of land for the purpose of a canal is what caused the trouble between the Republics Colombia and Panama over the 1904 treaty, which was of value.

ASK BIG BROTHER POLICY.

The Panamanians feel that this treaty was negotiated and one of aggression.

They ask for a big brother policy in the hope that the Japanese question, and complications in Haiti and Santo Domingo will not be repeated. It is expected that the flood in Haiti and Santo Domingo be restored.

Work is going on the Japanese fight here in full and rumoring that the United States wants to increase the garrison and to start Fort Clayton, now employing 6,000 men, in full division, but is delaying this action somewhat because of the prevalence of liquor in the cities of Panama.

In the presence of a congregation that filled the edifice Miss Helen G. Traffey of No. 59 Monument square, Charlestown, was married to Daniel J. Methodist of Newark, N. J., a son of Sergeant and Mrs. James McDevitt of Jamaica Plain, in St. Mary's church, Charlestown, with a nuptial mass celebrated by the Rev. M. J. Murphy.

The bride is well known in musical circles. The bridegroom, while at Holy Cross College, played center on the football eleven. They will reside in Newark, N. J.

"HUMORESQUE" SHOWN TO STATE PRISONERS

The motion picture play, "Humoresque," was shown to the 434 inmates at the state prison as a part of the Thanksgiving Day program. At noon the prisoners were served a dinner consisting of chicken, potato, turnip, cranberries and mince pie. Colonel Walter Scott sent cigars.

From Silk Shirts to Shoddy!

From one extreme to another. How typically American. So that today you find the clothing market flooded with the poorest quality of clothing known for a generation, and actually nearing a shortage of high-grade suits and overcoats. For when the "Don't Buy" propaganda started the avalanche of cancellations that closed the mills, it was the best merchandise that was cancelled, and today there are hardly enough fine goods to go around.

Our orders were placed for the best clothes the market produces—to meet the needs of the richest and most prosperous people on earth—and we accepted every dollar's worth. These are the clothes we are selling at YOUR PRICE—to dispose of them soon and help start the mills.

War Department Canned Meats

That's how much of these unsurpassed canned meats were shipped last week to every section of the United States—sold by thousands of dealers and relished at the tables of hundreds of thousands of families, and little wonder, when delicious quality of these meats is considered in connection with their extremely low price, which would have seemed extraordinary in pre-war days. This is the Government's second thrust at the high cost of living. The prices quoted are wholesale prices, but they give you some idea of what you can buy this incomparable food for from your dealer. Obey that impulse now. See your dealer. If he hasn't this meat in stock he should have, for these wholesale prices allow him a good profit and you a great saving. Send us his name by postal.

No order received for less than $250.00

Have Your Grocer Grind It

Ask your grocer to sell you La Touraine in the bean, and have him grind it for you. Coffee that is freshly ground just before it is used contains the largest amount of flavor, because the volatile oils which give to the good coffee taste cannot evaporate so easily from the whole bean.

To make coffee perfectly, there are many points you should understand about the peculiar nature of the coffee bean. These and a score of other interesting and vital facts are contained in our little booklet called "How I Make Perfect Coffee." We will be glad to send a copy of the illustrated

"How Do You Serve this Perfect Coffee?"

"IT is really delicious—that wonderful rich coffee taste, that we have never been able to get at home. What is the secret?"

"It's really no secret at all," replied the hostess. "I buy La Touraine, the best coffee I have been able to find, and I see that it is made right. You know, with most of us coffee has been treated like the stepchild of the table. We have taken no care in buying or in making it. Care—that's the secret of good coffee."

La Touraine is the best coffee you will be able to find, because it is made by an exacting formula which has been the pride of a great Boston coffee house for nearly a generation.

Although the finest coffees of their kind go into La Touraine, we could not get the special La Touraine flavor unless these coffees were blended and roasted in rigid obedience to the formula. Each of these high grade coffees contributes its peculiar snap and richness to the taste.

Try La Touraine today. Your grocer has it. Get the free booklet on coffee-making mentioned elsewhere in this advertisement. Then you, too, will serve the perfect coffee.

Do not accept La Touraine unless it is in the La Touraine package.

Lewis Defeats Chevalier; Laitewan Holds Fristensky to a Draw; 6,000 Witness Bouts

More than 6,000 wrestling fans were given a rare card full of their favorite thrills at the Turkey Thanksgiving night tourney in Mechanics Hall. They saw "Strangler" Lewis defeat Salvatore Chevalier, the French heavyweight champion, Joe Stecker, the world's champion overcome John Olin, one of the only two men who have ever stopped him, and Arno Laitenen, the Finnish champion heavyweight, wrestle Franz Fristensky to a draw.

Seldom has a crowd rooted for a foreigner to win over Lewis. The French war hero seemed doomed by his American opponents' when as a matter of fact, Chevalier weighed only fifteen pounds less than Lewis. The "Strangler" disposed of his man with the usual head lock in 29 minutes.

Up to the climax Chevalier had countered the head lock by sheer strength frequently lifting Lewis and hurling him half way across the ring. Several times he had Lewis in a bad way, but not in danger with arm bar holds and a body scissors that would have meant defeat for any man. Four [illegible] edge of the game but when the "Strangler" started his three minute Chevalier did not have the power to hold him off.

GEORGETOWN MAY SPRING SURPRISE AND DEFEAT B. C.

NEITHER TEAM IS PLAYING IN TOP FORM JUST NOW

By CHARLES E PARKER.

Greater Boston football fandom will observe its next to last college game of the current season at Braves Field tomorrow when Major Calahanagh's undefeated Boston College eleven engages Georgetown

The fat Georgetown suffered defeats at the hands of the Navy, Georgia Tech and Washington & Lee has dimmed somewhat the hue that accrued from their victories early in the season but that it was a rather rotten bunch is the opinion of all who saw the making of the two grave and gaudy of their rival coaches

Were Boston college to play as it did five or six weeks ago against Yale there would be no doubt concerning the outcome. But Boston College, since the New Haven contest has not shown quite the snap and ginger that many had expected from her, of this has come reports that will keep at least two of B. C.'s best men out of the lineup, and will Boston College should, indeed be in such condition, the victory is far from secure.

Neither Fitzpatrick Nor Heaphy Likely to Start

It was perfectly natural that B. C. should suffer a slump after the Yale contest. It had been fighting along with the Eli's Coach Crowley and with the Yale victory acquired it was forced to battle one week and then encounter modern opponents all of which caused the athletes to go bad.

Georgetown, despite its record, is no set back of an eleven. It is a veteran team and with the exception of Gallagher, one of the fastest backs in the line, Holy Le Gendre, Champ Athletic and acquaintance of no mean ability has been groomed especially for tomorrow's affair and Bob will find plenty of his speed needed and considerable to occupy Cleveland.

Neither Heaphy nor Fitzpatrick is entitled to start the game for their team and we're capable each will be their place to be seen on the squad quite equal to them in ability.

Braves Field Not in Best of Condition

Because of the recent rain and snow the Braves Field playing surface will not be in the best possible condition and in consequence the plays that can be used with safety will be considerably limited

The local contest is one of three important college games scheduled for the day. In far off Seattle, the Big Green team from Dartmouth will attempt to write a unique chapter in football history—that of winning a big game on the Pacific Coast one week after having won an important game on the Atlantic Coast

The Washington University eleven that Dartmouth opposes is not quite up to the standard of previous years but it is a husky hard fighting eleven according to reports and will take a lot of beating before it surrenders. The Dartmouth eleven made the cross-continents journey without difficulty, working out each day during the train journeys and at the larger towns and arrived in Seattle in reported to be in excellent condition for the fray. Playing in Seattle will be vastly different than playing at Evanston, Calif. conditions the Seattle climate is very nearly identical with New England climate.

Little to Choose Between Army and Navy

Dartmouth rules the favorite and it will enter the game with its full fighting strength there seems every reason to count on a Dartmouth victory.

The third important contest of the day is the Army-Navy annual at the Polo Grounds. Three weeks ago the Army played a decided favorite and were the field to be hard and dry it would probably continue to hold such a position. But the Middie arrival is somewhat heavier and has been coming along fast since the Princeton defeat. It looks like a good deal of a horse proposition and because of that fact there seems little to choose between the service school elevens.

French the Army fullback, probably will prove the outstanding backfield man on the field, but the Navy has a sturdy one-smashing, off tackle charging back in One Mr. Koehler.

In their preparation for tomorrow's affray the Army employed Army maneuvers in a rather novel fashion, in that they practiced at night by the aid of a search light operated from Fort Putnam. The light in answer to rocket signals from the playing field, would sweep up and down the field with each play, and all in all, worked very well.

GOLF IS 100 PER CENT. COMPETITIVE IN ALL REAL MATCHES

PLAYERS ALWAYS TRYING TO DISCOURAGE OPPONENTS

By ROBERT E. HARLOW.

A sincere student of all manner of athletic competition has reached the conclusion that there is only a 50 per cent. competition in golf, as compared to a 100 per cent. competition in football, baseball and boxing.

He bases this finding upon the theory that in golf a player is always on the offense in that he is straining to secure power at each stroke, than his opponent, whereas in football, baseball and boxing, the contestants are at times attempting to prevent their opponents from securing points or to keep couples points for their selves.

We do not agree with this conclusion. We think a golf contest is as defensive as it is offensive, as well as offensive play. As a matter of fact very nearly every stroke but in a close match is as much a defensive as an offensive play. It is offensive as far as it affects the score of the golfer who hit it, and defensive in its effect upon the play of an opponent.

Ouimet Hit Some 100 Per Cent. Shots

Take Jones' Tournament even after playing a number of holes come to a long two-shot hole with a brook guarding the green. Both strive to drive the longest hit off the tee. This is actually a 100 per cent. perfect drive, for the player strives to make his second shot nearer than that of his opponent by getting closer to the green and also to cause his opponent to play his second shot first.

Francis Ouimet hit three of the finest 100 per cent. golf shots in the National's history with Jesse Jones. They not only were great plays by himself, but they were perfect examples of defense to play against Jones as Jones has was against Harvard.

At the seventh hole Ouimet's approach putt ran several feet beyond the hole and Jones was close. Jones figured he had a half and a good chance to win. Ouimet sank his putt and Jones missed. As a result, Jones, without in the least intending to, put Ouimet into a trap and Jones was on to get half a five. Ouimet's long putt for a three to half Jones' in this instance. Jones thought he had a win handed away. These different efforts of Ouimet upset Jones, and Ouimet won handily.

Row of Birdies Make 'Em Groggy

All golf lovers who have been members of golf clubs in championship matches know that players can upset by getting a row of birdies on them because of brilliant play by opponents, as well as they do in boxing or football. A row of birdies in golf is apt to have the same effect upon an opponent as a row of jabs and a few hooks in a fistic match or a row of blocks and a straight right. The birdies are apt to "daze" or "stun" the opponent, thus preventing him from getting a row of pars in return. In golf, those couples points for their opponents.

The competition is also 100 per cent on the putting green when one player has dropped a twelve foot putt for a par, leaving his opponent with a four-foot put for a half, when he expected to have the four-footer for a win and two for a half. The sinking of the long twelve-foot putt is taken to be quite as effective as a put put at first base after a ball has been fielded in behind or a jolt in the short rib.

Arcadie Masse, veteran French professional and former holder of the French open championship of the year, put Ouimet out of the match on the 17th green at the 36th hole of the French championship of the year, which Walter Hagen and Jesse Sweetser were playing. Hagen and Jesse each reached the home green in five, a number of shots Jesse was away and putted, being a bit short.

Gassiat Played a 50 Per Cent. Game

Hagen, introducing some 100 per cent. perfect golf into the situation, waiting for Gassiat to put again although he was away and it was his move, presided. The Frenchman wished to declare himself "Gassiat" seeing Hagen pause, went up and putted his ball quickly and to the consternation of the French gallery, in particular Ouimet. Had then had two putts to beat Gassiat, but it was Mitchell, was was holing the field.

In this instance Gassiat lost an opportunity to win a hole and a chance to win the match by playing 50 per cent. golf. He should have waited for Hagen to make his approach putt for Hagen would then be forced to either try to sink a long one, or play safe for he must have putted on the assumption that Gassiat would get his about one down.

Filene's

SHOPS FOR MEN

Men's clothes—are prices lower here?

THERE SEEMS some doubt on the part of Economists and others as to whether the retailer has done his part in the downward march of men's clothes prices. Our own feeling is that what goes on in the store is more important than what comes out in the papers. So we have said little about what has been going on inside the Filene Men's Shops since way back last Spring. But prices here have been constantly receding; and without either the accompaniment of brass bands or a reduction of quality.

What men's dollars buy at Filene's

214 men's suits and overcoats that were $35 to $45 . . . . $25

373 men's suits and overcoats that were $45 to $60 . . . . $35

111 men's suits and overcoats that were $55 to $70 . . . . $45

549 men's suits and overcoats that were $60 to $80 . . . . $50

And 365 suits and overcoats that were $70 to $100 $60 and $75

—many goods bought for Fall were repriced before going on sale.

—our Stein-Bloch line was repriced by the makers on their own initiative before delivery to us.

—since September 1 we have had periodical reductions to the prices men WANTED to pay (a policy laid down in advance of the season).

—on goods made in our own workshops we saved the public not only the maker's profit, but also from $10 to $15 over last season.

—over a month ago we took a sharp reduction on most of our stock.

—when the wholesale clothing market broke last week we took another reduction.

THUS you see the Filene Men's Shops have become known as shops built on the same principles that built the entire Filene business—VALUE-GIVING, and that men who look around thoroughly discover that Filene clothes for men are not only substantial clothes for substantial men, but SUBSTANTIALLY LOWER in price as well.

CHAPTER VIII.—Continued

FOR the present she would be very quiet, would remain in the inconspicuous background, and would unassumingly accept the role of that unthought girl she was here supposed to be. If she was that girl, frankly and seemingly without aspirations, the fewer questions would be asked her, the less hostility would be roused. Her first efforts would be merely to get herself accepted by non-critical. But later on she was going to be a worldly beer. She would do it somehow! For this was the way up.

Presently the rising gong sounded, and she arose and rubbed the last of the anti- from her eyes. Rolling over, she saw a dark-eyed girl in pink bed who seemed to be lonely and very apprehensive.

"Everything is going to be all right, Jennie," she said cheerily. "Just you be all right, child."

"I'll try not to," Jennie replied diffidently—keenly trying to study her roommate.

She thought a moment; she recalled how limited was Jennie's wardrobe. "I say, Jennie, you told me last night you were going shopping in a few days. Were about the same size, and I've no end of things. I wish you'd wear 'em till you get a chance to buy your own."

Jenn's hesitated an instant. Her present clothes were not only pitifully inadequate for, but strikingly discordant in, such surroundings as these—and Jennie, even if she had few of them, loved pretty clothes. But her shrewd wit prompted her to a decision in keeping with the man she had just made for herself.

"You're awfully good, Sue—but, no, thank you," she said, and got down to business. "I'll have invoked Gronia's sarcasm the night before.

After breakfast she was summoned by Miss Gresham into the study where she and Uncle George had been received. Miss Gresham briefly examined Jennie, sketched her courses for the first half-year, then said in her carefully modulated voice.

"Jennie, I have arranged for Miss Van der Brunt, the social director of the school, to motor into New York with you this week and have luncheon today and help select the new outfit your guardian desired purchased for you."

"If you don't mind, Miss Gresham," said Jennie, "I'd like to wait for a few days."

Miss Gresham raised her handsome eyebrows. In her experience it was something distinctly out of the ordinary for a girl to avoid new clothes.

"Why, Jennie?"

"If you please, it was a long trip here, and I'm rather tired," replied Jennie.

In Her Old Clothes

"Just as you like," said Miss Gresham.

And so Jennie went about in her old clothes—not altogether pleased with them, but having the approval of her shrewd, patient plan. Better to be laughed at for her crudity and ignorance than sneered at for being a trifle smart. The change must be made so gradually that it would attract no attention. She could afford to wait.

For the first day or two in this wonderful school, beneath the quiet, retiring manner which she showed her mates, her every nerve was stretched to tightest suspense. For all her decision, the present, the future, existed for her only in terms of pressing and constantly iterated questions—the same questions that had risen in her when she had rolled hither with Uncle George. What was life here really going to be? Could she really make good in such a place? Would the police trace her? Would she, despite her guard upon herself, thoughtlessly commit some error which might lead to her betrayal?

On her second day at Braithewood Hall this thoughtlessness occurred to her. She was in bathing in a suit borrowed from Sue Harrimon, in those sheltered waters of Long Island Sound the water continued warm enough for bathing throughout October, Consensus of nothing but the animal delight of being in the water, away she went with a racing stroke, white arms swiftly flashing, her face deep in the water, around the float and back to the bathing-pier. On the pier a group of girls in bathing dress were gazing at her in surprise. It was Gloria Raymond who spoke for them.

[illegible] drawled, "did you learn that crawl out on the deserts of Wyoming?"

For a moment Jennie was all confusion—terrified, she felt her indiscretion opened the way for her exposure—and the coming of Cassy! She hid her dismay under the business of wringing out her shirt, then she said calmly.

"It wasn't really a desert where I came from. There was a river, and my uncle taught me to swim."

She saw that, though still surprised, they believed her. The tense moment passed, she breathed easier. What if these fine young ladies really knew the truth; that she had learned to swim in the enclosed public baths which are tied up against the city docks during Summer time, that she had been something of a star in those common places—that Black Jerry, who loved the water and was a mighty swimmer, had for years past taken her once a week on dark Summer afternoons down to Coney Island or Manhattan Beach!

But after the first few days had passed and no police had come, the fear of outside interference began to recede in Jennie as far her possible betraying blunders, reason began to quiet her on that point. She reminded herself that she was expected to make mistakes—she decided it was in keeping with her character to make them, and perhaps make a few consciously; and so when she did make real blunders she was not greatly discomfited. She bore in mind one sage injunction of Uncle George: "When in doubt about what to do, wait and watch what the other girl does with her fork." She was constantly watching what the other girl did with her "fork." She noted everything—she remembered it—and one at a time, she made little changes.

After a week Jennie consented to a shopping expedition in New York with the very erect Miss Van der Brunt. Even then she chose only the fewest and most literal things possible—though it hurt her to give up the pretty garments that might have been hers by merely saying yes. In this procedure she was guided not only by her own decision to play down to her part, but by the canny realization that she did not yet know, of her own knowledge, what a girl in her station should wear; if she bought too much now, even under the guidance of Miss Van der Brunt, most of her purchases of silver at her place at first had Jennie confused; here, indeed, was real necessity for the literal following of that figurative injunction about waiting to see what the other girl did with her fork.

In these matters also Jennie did her best—rather, as far as actual performance went, a little less than her best. To learn such things was what she was here for. But in the midst of these august ceremonials Jennie would sometimes think of her father, and within herself she would smile at what would be the amazement of Black Jerry and her old friends at the Pekin, could they only behold these manoeuvres and her soberly taking a part in them.

Of all these multiple branches she cared most for the work of the dancing master and the vocal teacher. But here, too, she tried to hold herself back—indeed the joy of dancing made her forget and she let herself out and surprised the little dancing master, she immediately counteracted it with a display of awkwardness and stupidity that sent the little man into one of his worst fits of artistic frenzy. She pursued the same course with the vocal master. By both despairing teachers she was considered a mediocrity gifted with streaks of undependable and undeveloped talent—"but impossible—altogether impossible!" But from both—and both knew their business —Jennie, despite appearances, observed every point.

Weeks passed, and months, and Jennie, watching everything, with a growing sense of security, fitted more and more into the routine of the school. Most of the girls paid little heed to Jennie—they were too much engrossed with themselves, with their cousins, with sports, and quite incidentally with their school work. And when they did giggle a bit at her, or were superior, or snubbed her, she gave no sign and tried not to care.

From that first evening in the dining-room she knew that Gloria Raymond was to be unchangeably hostile. Jennie had early sensed that Gloria held the somewhat anomalous position of being the most autocratic, the most sought-after, girl in the school—and secretly the girl most feared and most hated.

It was Gloria who made her most strikingly forget her meek role, and who started her upward out of her self-imposed obscurity. One February day in the squash court during a match between Sue and Gloria, both in white sweaters and knickerbockers, there was a dispute over a point in which the unaided yielding Sue doggedly maintained that she was right. Gloria's temper mounted into swift flame, and she called Sue a liar. Jennie, the only onlooker and a perfunctory onlooker at that, knew nothing about squash, but she was fully acquainted with the word "liar" and what people did at the sound of that word. Instantly and instinctively she sprang before Gloria, her black eyes gleaming.

"You take that back!" she cried. "I'll take nothing back!" snapped Gloria, at first not noting who Sue's champion was. And then as she saw, added in a tone that was vibrant with anger, "Hello, if it isn't that Wyoming runt!"

"You take it back what you said about Sue!" repeated Jennie.

Greek Meets Greek

For answer Gloria's right hand shot out furiously. Jennie was slighter and half a head shorter, but she had fought since she was a child and had later years she and Harry Edwards had scuffled good-naturedly, and he had shown her many tricks of the wrestling game of which he was a devotee. Jennie caught Gloria's wrist before the darting, clawlike hand could reach her face, gave the arm a sharp twist and tripped her opponent—and the rest of what happened happened so quickly that it seemed to have only beginning and end. There was Gloria lying on her back on the floor, and on her proud body sat Jennie, holding each wrist in a grip never taught her by the other's writhing could not avail to break it; in fact so cunning were the twisting grips that Gloria's struggles merely caused her excruciating pains to shoot through elbows and shoulders—with the result that Jennie smiled, gasping.

"Let me up!" she demanded.

"I will just as soon as you have apologized to Sue."

"I'll not do it!"

"All right. I guess I can stand this as long as you can."

"If you don't let me up," fumed Gloria, "I'll call a—help—and then you'll see the trouble you'll get in!"

"Please call," Jennie urged tauntingly. "Don't hold back because of worry over the trouble I'd get in. Call—I'm sure all the girls would just love to run in and see what's here—and it would be something for them to talk about all the while you're in school and for years afterward—the wild creature from Wyoming sitting on the elegant Miss Gloria Raymond's stomach. So please do cry out, dear."

Gloria was consumed with fury. "What do you want?" she demanded [illegible]

"Just say, 'Sue, I was wrong, and I'm sorry I called you what I did.'"

Gloria glared and choked for a moment. But in a husky voice she repeated the sentence.

"And now say, 'Sue, I promise I'll never do anything of the sort again.'"

That, likewise, Gloria repeated. Jennie promptly released her, and Gloria struggled to her feet, [illegible]

"I don't ask you to promise this, Gloria, dear," Jennie went on, "for it's a promise you probably won't keep—but in spite of who you are, just try to be as much of a lady as you can."

Gloria trembled all over, her face was a dull scarlet, her eyes glowered with a malignant fire, but she choked back her fury. Without speaking, she turned abruptly and hurled out of the squash court.

Sue, who had stood stupefied during this swift clash of instincts that were supposed to have been eradicated generations before one came into the refined atmosphere of Braithewood Hall, now came to life.

"Jennie!" she breathed. "Jennie!" "I wish dad could have seen that!" exclaimed Jennie—and the sight of those two figures in their respective positions might indeed have given grim joy to Black Jerry.

"Your father, Jennie! I thought your father was dead"

Jennie quickly rectified the slip. "I sometimes call my guardian dad."

"But, Jennie," Sue cried, "Gloria will never forget that—she'll hate you all her life! And there's nothing she won't do."

"I'll not be afraid—I'm not afraid of her!" Jennie returned defiantly. And then she remembered that she had not played her role as she had written it for herself, she was not defiantly contrite and was the mild, unassuming person she had created.

"I'm awfully sorry, Sue," she said with her best humility. "I forgot myself—I'm terribly cruel —I don't know at all how to behave myself."

"It was wonderful, Jennie!" Sue kissed her impulsively. "And Gloria was trying to cheat [illegible]

"I guess we'd better say nothing about it."

"I'll not," replied Jennie.

And they did not, and it is to be presumed that Gloria was at no pains to publish the incident. But in the close community of a girls' school secrets seem not to require the medium of words; they seem to have ways known only to themselves for escaping the confinement of human silence. And on the encounter in the squash-court house did come to be talked about—in whispered privacy; but never directly to Jennie and never directly to Gloria. The latter was accorded the same deference as before and allowed the same domination—which may or may not be a commentary on the human species—but thereafter Jennie began to receive little attentions from the other girls, never in the open and never marked. From this time there began a subtle change in the attitude toward her that was to grow, it was to be this time she began slowly to be somebody.

But as the months passed, there was not a day that she did not think of her father and her Aunt Mary—of all the people with whom she belonged to the world which she had left; not a day that in her there was not the yearning pity for them. The one thing of her present life that she did not like was this thing which was its very foundation—the fact that she was to see her father again. Nor Aunt Mary. Nor—nor Harry Edwards. In those bright hours when she was yearning-ly awake, looking back upon the people of her past, she wondered if the parting really had to be forever—or if there might come some unguessable twist of affairs, as great as that which had landed her here, which would sometime, somehow, bring her life again in touch with those whom she had left.

In her lived two great desires: to reach forward and grasp whatever prizes might develop in the vague, rainbowed future—to reach back and hold tight to a few persons of the past

In her wondering over the plane she had so carefully laid, she gave shrewd consideration to every element which might influence her career. To every element except one, and of that she did not think at all: that element was the unknown person who existed in her even then—existed germinally—for in time, out of her real selves her life deep hidden, and then would go on to the end without the need sending forth its first sprout, without our ever knowing who we really are.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

What the Story Is About

How Jenny, the daughter of Black Jerry Malone, the keeper of a low dance hall in New York, was rescued in the very nick of time from her environment and introduced to exclusive New York society through the influence of a former crook is the thrilling basis of this new story, by the author of "Mary Regan." The novel tells mainly of her adventures in the second of the two worlds through which her amazing career takes her, where reminders of her past appear, and the result is many thrilling and dramatic episodes.

CHAPTER XX.

WHILE Peter was having a good time with the Bohemian crowd in which Theo Dallas moved, his sister was initiated into a type of society of which she knew little.

When she met the Lawrences she had supposed that they and their kind were strictly conventional. She soon learned that this was not the case. At first the stats of affairs bewildered her. She had thought that rich people were rather stately and proper. It was not long before events opened her unsophisticated eyes.

"I did not suspect that nice New Yorkers played cards for money," she once said to Irene Lawrence.

Irene raised her slender brows. "Some of them do not. Most of us are of the old-fashioned sort. We do not care for gambling games. I fancy few of us would like them better. As for myself, I like cards fairly well—and do not see any harm in playing for a few cents a rubber."

It was [illegible] to Mary that she must learn to play. She said as much to her father.

"But you [illegible] at home! I remember [illegible]

Playing for Money

I suppose we will play this evening, won't we?" she asked later of Henry Barton who sat beside her at dinner.

"We always do here," the man replied. "You play, of course?"

"Oh, yes, I play—but I seldom win any prizes," she answered.

"You have never played for money?" her companion asked.

"Why, yes," she admitted, "since I came to New York some of the girls and I have played. But only for ridiculously small sums. In fact, I have not lost or won more than a dollar or two. I don't think it's wrong to play for such sums as that."

Lewis Sheldon, on her left, heard her speech.

"What's that?" he asked, leaning across to catch Barton's ear. "Are you intimating, Barton, that there is any harm in playing cards for cash? Is Saul among the prophets?"

"No, no," Horton declared. "I intimated nothing of the kind. I am not such a hypocrite as to do that. It was Miss Throckmorton here who suggested that there was no harm in playing penny-ante—or something of that sort."

"There's just as much harm in playing for pennies as for dollars," Sheldon contended. "And there's no harm in either. You are not so old-fashioned as to think there is, my dear, are you?" he asked the girl.

She laughed, yet felt uncomfortable at his free-and-easy style of address. Then she reflected that he had been dining champagne freely this evening.

She glanced down the table, saw the end of which Mother Lawrence presided, noted that her face was flushed. She also saw that [illegible] She did not wish [illegible] Mother Lawrence [illegible] Sheldon was [illegible]

She felt suddenly ashamed of [illegible] She had been in the crowd and she meant to do as the [illegible]

For an instant Mary Throckmorton hesitated. She had never indulged in gambling and never [illegible] at a game of cards.

"[illegible] thing perhaps I will not play"—she began. But she stopped as her hostess frowned.

"Surely, Miss Throckmorton," Caroline Brainard protested, "you are not refusing to play! Why, it will spoil the game for three other people if you do. You are needed to make up the fourth table, you see."

"Naturally she will play," [illegible] don urged. He laid his hand on Mary's bare arm with a warning

Study and the Child

SCHOOL life has an important bearing upon the life of the child. The average normal child stands the strain of the public school curriculum as it is now applied without any great consideration for the nervously ill-fed or exceptional child of any type.

DOROTHEA F. SCHOLZE, Providence

GERTRUDE O. TOOMEY, Providence

MARY SMITH, Providence

THE BOSTON AMERICAN offers $5,000 in gold for photographs of lovely girls. To the girl declared by the judges to be the loveliest girl in New England, the American will pay $3,000 in gold. To the next girl in merit, $1,000 in gold. There will be two third prizes of $500 each. In awarding the prizes the judges will have in mind Arthur Brisbane's definition of beauty. Mr. Brisbane says beauty is "intelligence in a fine setting." The judges will study the photographs, first for intelligence, second for health, and third for physical beauty. There are no strings attached. Just send in the photograph of your wife, sweetheart, sister or friend. All photographs willl be given careful treatment and will be returned when the contest is over. Address all mail to "Loveliest Girl Editor," Boston American, P. O. Box 238, Boston 3, Mass.

FOR THE SAKE OF ACCURACY—We rise to correct the statement of the football scribe who stated that Charlie Dean of U. of So. Cal. "waded through the Nevada eleven for four touchdowns" last Saturday. The above remarkable action photo shows that young Mr. Dean WALKED OVER the eleven young men from Nevada. Progressive chap, Dean, very progressive. —(c) Int.

CHAPTER XIII.—Continued

Presently, in the midst of these thoughts, Hodder's eyes were arrested by a crowd barring the sidewalk on the block ahead; no unusual sight in that neighborhood, and yet one which aroused in him sensations of weakness and nausea. Thus were the hidden vice and suffering of these sinister places occasionally brought to light, exposed to the curious and morbid stares of those whose own turn might come on the morrow. It was only by degrees he comprehended that the people were gathered in front of the house to which they were bound. An ambulance was seen to drive away; it turned into the side street in front of them.

"A city ambulance!" the rector exclaimed.

Mr. Bentley did not reply.

The murmuring group which overflowed the uneven brick pavement to the asphalt was characteristic: women in calico, drudges, women in wrappers, with sleepy, awe-stricken faces; idlers, men and boys who had run out of the saloons, whose comments were more audible and caustic, and a fringe of children ceaselessly moving on the outskirts. The crowd parted at their approach, and they reached the gate, where a burly policeman, his helmet in his hand, was standing in the morning sunlight moping his face with a red handkerchief. He greeted Mr. Bentley respectfully, by name, and made way for them to pass in.

"What is the trouble, Ryan?" Mr. Bentley asked.

"Suicide, sir," the policeman replied. "Jumped the bridge this morning. A tug picked him up, but he never came to—the strength wasn't in him. Sure it's all wore out he was. There was a letter on him, with the house number, so they knew where to fetch him. It's a sad case, sir, with the woman in there, and the child going to the hospital not an hour ago."

"You mean Garvin" Mr. Bentley demanded.

"It's him I mean, sir."

"We'd like to go in," said Mr. Bentley. "We came to see them."

"You're welcome, sir, I'm sure," the minister too. It's only them I'm holdin' back," and the policeman shook his stick at the people.

Mr. Bentley walked up the steps, and took off his hat as he went through the battered doorway. Hodder followed, with a score of curious faces staring at them from the thresholds as they passed; they reached the upper passage, and the room, and paused; the shutters were closed, the little couch where the child had been was empty, the bed lay a form covered with a sheet, and beside it a woman kneeling, shaken by sobs, ceaselessly calling a name. . . .

A stout figure, hitherto unperceived, rose from a corner and came silently forward—Mrs. Breitmann. She beckoned to them, and they followed her into a room on the same floor, where she told them what she knew. Presently the tears coursing ceaselessly down her cheeks.

It seemed that Mrs. Garvin had had a premonition which she had not wholly confided to the rector. She had believed her husband never would come back early in the morning. In spite of all that Mrs. Breitmann could do, had insisted at intervals upon running to the window and scanning the street. At half-past seven Dr. Jarvis had come and himself carried away the child and put him in the back of his automobile. The doctor had had a nurse with him, and had begged the mother to accompany them to the hospital, saying that he would send her back. But she would not be persuaded to leave the room. The doctor could not wait, and had finally gone off with little Dicky, leaving a powder with Mrs. Breitmann for the mother. Then she had become uncontrollable.

"Act, It Was Terrible."

"Ach, it was terrible!" said the kind woman. "She was crazy, yes—she was not in her mind. make a little coffee, but she will not touch it. All those things from my home she would talk of, and how good he was, and how she lofed him more again than the child . . . Und then the wheels in the street, and she makes a cry and runs to see—I cannot hold her. . . .

"It would be well not to disturb her for a while," said Mr. Bentley, seating himself on one of the dilapidated chairs which formed a part of the German woman's meagre furniture. "I will remain here if you, Mr. Hodder, will make the necessary arrangements for the funeral. Have you any objections, sir?"

"Not at all," replied the rector, and left the house, the occupants of which had already returned to the daily round of their lives: the rattle of dishes and the murmur of voices were heard in the ci devant parlor, and on the steps he met the little boys with the pitcher of beer; in the street the boys who had gathered around the ambulance were playing baseball. Hodder glanced up, involuntarily, at the window of the woman he had visited the night before, but it was empty. He hurried along the littered sidewalks to the drug store, where he telephoned an undertaker; and then, as an afterthought, telephoned the hospital. The boy had arrived, and was seemingly no worse for the journey.

All this Hodder performed mechanically. Not until he was returning—not, indeed, until he entered the house did the whiff of its degrading, bestial odors bring home to him the tragedy which it held, and he grasped the banister on the stairs. The knowledge that he was now was of the cumulative misery of the city, of the world, of which this history on which he had stumbled was but one insignificant incident. But he went on into Mrs. Breitmann's room, and saw Mr. Bentley still seated where he had left him. The old gentleman looked up at him.

"Mrs. Breitmann and I are agreed, Mr. Hodder, that Mrs. Garvin ought not to remain in there. What do you think?"

"By all means, no," said the rector.

The German woman burst into a soliloquy of sympathy that became incoherent.

"She will not leave him—nein—she will not come."

They went, the three of them, to the doorway of the dead woman's and stood gazing at the huddled figure of the woman by the bedside. She had ceased to cry out; she was as one grown numb under torture; occasionally a convulsive shudder shook her. But when Mrs. Breitmann touched her, spoke to her, her grief awoke again in all its violence, and it was more by force than persuasion that she was finally removed. Mrs. Breitmann held one arm, Mr. Bentley another, and between them they fairly carried her out, for she was frail indeed.

He crossed the room on tiptoe, as though he feared to wake once more this poor wretch to his misery and hate. Gently he covered again the face with the sheet.

Women! Put Natural Color into Your Cheeks. Eat Spinach and Apples and re-inforce them with a little organic iron—quickly helps make rich red blood and revitalize worn out exhausted nerves.

When the iron goes from the blood the color leaves your cheeks. Your skin takes on a pale, unhealthy appearance; you become more or less nervous and irritable; you tire easily and feel that you lack your old-time strength and endurance. There can be no strong healthy blood or nerves without plenty of iron in their blood. The thoroughly modern way to restore the vital iron of blood—of the modern woman is probably due largely to the food she eats and to "Scientific Cookery methods of living. If you are not willing to eat the peels and skins of fruits and vegetables and the husks of wheat so as to supply your blood with iron, then you should eat plenty of spinach and apples and reinforce them with a little pure organic iron—quickly helps to enrich your blood and thereby revitalize your worn-out exhausted nerves. But be sure that the iron you take is organic iron and not metallic or mineral iron which people usually take, as metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acids on iron filings.

Organic iron is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. It may be had from your druggist under the name of Nuxated Iron. Nuxated Iron represents organic iron in such highly condensed form that one dose of it is estimated to be approximately equivalent to the iron contained in the blood of a half quart of spinach, one quart of green vegetables or half a dozen apples. It is like taking a tonic instead of eating pounds of beef.

Over 400,000 people annually are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. A few doses will often commence to enrich your blood. Try it and see how much better you feel. Caution: Inform if you do not obtain satisfactory results.

Beware of substitutes. Always insist on having genuine organic iron—Nuxated Iron. Look for the letters N. I. R. on every tablet. Sold by all druggists.

NUXATED IRON ENRICHES THE BLOOD-GIVES YOU NEW STRENGTH AND ENERGY.

"California Syrup of Figs"

Delicious Laxative for Child's Liver and Bowels

Hurry mother! A teaspoonful of "California" Syrup of Figs today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. If your child is constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has cold, colic, or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, breath bad, remember a good "physic-laxative" is often all that is necessary.

Children love the "fruity" taste of genuine "California" Syrup of Figs which has directions for babies and children printed on every bottle. Ask "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup. Beware!

Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets cost but a few cents—Larger packages.

Fair Play for Retailers

Persons who believe retail merchants ought to make immediately such price reductions as will satisfy the public demand for cheaper goods should temper criticism with the spirit of fair play. The truth is that many retailers are now the sacrificial goats on the deflation altar. Some facts should be considered before assuming that a storekeeper is now trying to profiteer.

First, it should be remembered that his merchandise was largely bought on a war basis and that manufacturers and jobbers who are urging liquidation of store stocks sold them to the retailers at high prices and presumably at big profit.

Secondly, it ought to be realized that overhead expense of maintaining stores—rent, light, help and sundries—is as great as ever.

Thirdly, it is better for the public that prices should go down safely than to have deflation at the cost of bankruptcy. A business crash has been averted chiefly because of banking forebearance.

Further patience may be a good deal to ask of long suffering and greatly exasperated consumers, but if they exercise it they will contribute to public welfare and help business over the last hurdle on the readjustment road to national prosperity.

Do your Christmas shopping now.

Business Entitled Just Now to Tax Relief

We cannot agree with the Treasury Department that business is not entitled to relief from some of the taxes due in December. In the sense that aiding business out of the public treasury is objectionable, the aid which the suspension of the taxes or, better still, the revision of the taxes to meet the realities of the situation will accomplish, is not objectionable. Hundreds of our key industries, if they are obliged to pay the tax instalment in December, will be obliged to pay a tax upon profits which they have never made except on paper and which have not been realized because before their realization prices fell and the estimated profit was wiped out.

Now no business would pay the huge taxes levied under the Excess Profits Tax without disaster if the tax is levied upon profits that are merely estimated and are not consummated.

The organization representing our shoe manufacturers ask for a chance to revise their tax statements as they were allowed to revise them in the year 1918 so that they may correct their estimate of profits in accordance with the facts of December, 1920, and not with the optimistic hopes of March, 1920. The government does not want to collect taxes which do not belong to it. Of course, big business has for a great many years dodged taxes which it ought to have paid and the average man in the country had to pay in excessive taxes the huge amounts which big business has escaped improperly, and, of course, big business is escaping taxation under the stock dividend decision of the United States Supreme Court. But two or three wrongs do not make a right. It does not help the man who is on the brink of bankruptcy to be told, as an unjust levy of government taxes pushes him over, that others of his class have escaped in years past. When a business enterprise goes over the brink it pulls down with it many of the props of industry. It does not take many such enterprises to shake the whole fabric of industry and commerce and to stop its machinery dead still. We call this a panic.

Reduction of Rates Best Cure for Railroads

Mr. Henry C. Attwill, the good-natured chairman of our Department of Public Utilities, is in Washington trying to tell the people that the New England railroads need help. Mr. Choate, who served the New England railroads professionally and profitably during the Morgan regime, says that the New England railroads need help.

No doubt Mr. Choate knows not only that they need help but why they need it. They are still anemic from the transfusion of blood into some of Mr. Morgan's nearer and dearer enterprises. The representatives of the New England railroads want the people of New England to submit to another transfusion of blood from their pockets to the treasuries of the roads to make up for what was drawn off the roads to the vaults of Wall Street.

The first thing that the railroads ought to do, if they want more income, is to reduce their rates and passenger fares. They are now at a prohibitive level. No human being in his senses, if he can avoid it, will ride or send goods over the railroads and pay the prices that the railroads are demanding, since the government turned the roads back to their old private managers and their wet nurses in Wall Street.

The Esch-Cummins law, permitting the railroads practically to increase rates without limit, not only is strangling business on the railroads but is strangling business all over the country. We have not the slightest doubt that the recent rate increase of more than 35 per cent. is largely responsible for the present business depression.

Of course the railroads will deny it and of course every lackey newspaper will deny it and of course the Chambers of Commerce and the Boards of Trade who have not yet escaped from mental servitude to the high salaried railroad officials and the banking interests behind them will deny it. But any man of common sense must know that when you add 35 per cent. to the cost of everything that has to be sent over a railroad, and when nearly everything that is used in this country has to be sent over a railroad, not only once but more often many times, he can imagine what must be the consequence upon the business of the country of such an increase.

Let Mr Attwill come home and advise the real owners of the roads to take an interest in their property, to form committees—real stockholders' committees—not fake committees acting really in the interest of speculative bankers and managers hungering after the old big salaries. Then let the real owners negotiate with the government to turn the roads promptly back to the government to be run as our schools and our streets and our sewerage and our parks and our army and navy are run.

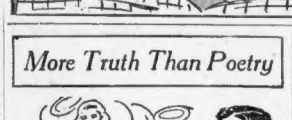
More Truth Than Poetry



Too Much for the Imagination

By S. E. KISER

I POSSESS imagination
In a pretty large degree;
When a case of desperation
Settles darkly down on me,
I shake off the gloom, and hurry
To build castles in the air;
It's an antidote for worry,
And a quick escape from care.

I CAN conjure up glad faces
Out of airy nothingness,
And perceive in distant places
Treasure that is limitless;
But I can't succeed in thinking,
When the drama's rough and tough,
That the tea the actor's drinking
Is the genuine old stuff.

IT'S a gift—a precious treasure—
Better far than wealth or fame;
It affords me every pleasure—
Nearly—that a man may claim.
But my fancy flickers faintly
And my vision disappears
When I try to think of saintly
Or angelic profiteers.

The 'SkinTailor' for Milady

A WOMAN no longer need have the date of her birth written on her face. She can, if she wills and has the money, enjoy once more the face of her girlhood, unmarred by wrinkles, puffy eyes, crows' feet or double chins.

The secret of this modern fountain of youth is the "skin tailor," or cosmetic surgeon who has found a way, by cutting and tailoring the skin, to remove the tell-tale traces of age without pain to the patient.

A full page in the next Boston Sunday Advertiser is devoted to this new miracle of surgery. A minute description of the methods employed is illustrated with photographs and diagrams. Every woman will be interested.

And, speaking of beauty, just what is that quality?

Monsier Paul Helleu, distinguished portrait etcher of the world's most beautiful women, answers the question for Boston Sunday Advertiser readers.

"Naturalness is the keynote," he says among other things and warns the woman who would be beautiful what to avoid. In the Magazine Section next Sunday.

Ladies should buy hats to fit their dispositions. This is the latest edict of the milliners of America. Before giving out the edict, however, they created the hats, a number of styles especially designed to fit certain standardized types of feminine character.

Are you a "vamp"? Here's a hat as useful to you as a mask to a burglar. Just a nice, straightforward girl? Try the "Simple Susan." Lively but lonely? Put on the "Come Hither" hat and never be lonely again. All these and others, illustrated and described in a special page article in the next Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Weak Eyes May Not Mean Wisdom.

Fair promises are like horn-rimmed spectacles. They don't amount to much unless there is something back of them.

Ye TOWNE GOSSIP

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

By K. C. B.

TIME WAS.
JUST A little while ago.
WHEN AN auto.
COULD START out.
AND SPY a woman.
JUST GETTING ready.
TO LEAVE the curb.
AND BLOW its horn.
AND SCARE her.
SO SHE'D stop.
AND GO on.
AND SEE a nurse.
WITH A baby carriage.
ON THE curb.
AND HURRY along.
FOR FEAR the nurse.
WOULD GET the baby.
ACROSS THE street.
BEFORE the auto.
WAS CLOSE enough.
TO BLOW its horn.
AND DRIVE her back.
AND NEARLY hit her.
AND THEN say.
"THOSE CRAZY nurses.
"THEY TAKE such chances."
AND GO on
AND TURN a corner.
AND NARROWLY miss.
A COUPLE of kids.
AND YELL out at them.
"YOU OUGHT to know better.
"THAN PLAY on the streets."
TIME WAS.
WHEN AN auto.
COULD DO these things.
AND NOW.
THEY'RE BEING stopped.
AND ASKED for licenses.
AND DID you steal your car?
AND WHAT'S your name?
AND HERE are some rules.
AND YOU'D better read 'em.
AND ALTOGETHER.
AN AUTOMOBILE.
HASN'T ANY more rights.
THAN A man on crutches.
OR AN old lady.
OR ANYBODY.

I THANK you

-:- Distrust -:-

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

DISTRUST that man who tells you distrust;
He takes the measure of his own small soul,
And thinks the world no larger. He who prates
Of human nature's baseness and deceit
Looks in the mirror of his heart, and sees
His kind therein reflected. Or perchance
The honeyed wine of life was turned to gall
By sorrow's hand, which brimmed his cup with tears,
And made all things seem bitter to his taste.
Give him compassion! But be not afraid
Of nectared Love, or Friendship's strengthening draught.
Nor think a poison underlies their sweets.
Look through true eyes—you will discover truth;
Suspect suspicion, and doubt only doubt.

EDISON'S ENTITIES CALLED A JOKE

By Rev. John Roach Straton,
Pastor Calvary Baptist Church, New York City.

MR. EDISON is always interesting in his speculations, and his opinions, of necessity, command respect because of his remarkable scientific achievements. But in his recent speculations, in which he doubts immortality and the reality of another world after this, he is "off his beat."

Universal Institution

There are certain institutions of the human race which have proved their reliability as organs of truth, apart entirely from the logical processes of reason. Man's belief in immortality and a future life is one of these. This belief is age long and widespread. Even primitive men held to it.

The American savage had his dream of a "happy hunting ground." The burial rites among the ancient Assyrians and Egyptians were an expression of the firm faith of those peoples, not only in the survival of the spirit after death, but in the resurrection and transformation of the body.

This intuition was also a heritage of the classical pagan mind. Cicero, Socrates, Homer—all clearly voiced their belief in a future life.

These intuitions of the race cannot be lightly brushed aside by modern skepticism. Their very antiquity and universality give them something of the authority of precedent.

Immortality Proved

The main mistake which Mr. Edison makes, however, is that of basing his thought about immortality and the unseen world on scientific grounds. The fact of the survival of human personality after death is proved historically, and therefore it does not require scientific speculation. It has stood as a fact of history now for two thousand years.

We have in the Bible the testimony of a group of unimpeachable witnesses that Jesus of Nazareth rose from the dead, with a transformed and glorified body.

Not only do these men bear testimony to this fact, but the event to which they testify is further proved by the fact that their own lives were transformed by that event. They were changed from a group of disheartened and dispirited cowards at the time of the crucifixion of their Master into a group of the world's greatest heroes—all of whom, with possibly one exception, suffered martyrdom for their faith—through meeting and recognizing Christ after His resurrection.

One of these men—Saul of Tarsus—was a bitter foe and persecutor of Christians until he also met the risen Christ in a revelation of heavenly glory which struck him unto the dust of the Damascus road and blinded him for several days.

Edison a Poor Theologian

Edison, therefore, is a great scientist but a poor theologian. What he needs to do is to cultivate his capacity for faith more than he has his capacity for doubt.

Of course, his speculative theories about our personalities being "swarms" or colonies of life particles or "entities," as he calls them, are a joke. This is the rarest bit of humor that I have seen in a long while.

But to this, also, there is a serious side, for what Mr. Edison has said will tend to shake the faith of some who only think upon the surface of things.

This writer had a mother so noble, beautiful and Christlike in character that she was almost worshipped by those who knew her well. She is gone away from us now. The thought that her radiant and glorious life has been broken up into fragments—one group of her "entities" going into some other form, another group into some animal perhaps, and so on, is revolting.

No! Mother is in Heaven with God, and that is all we need to know.

SOFT SHOE DANCING PLEASES RUNYON

By DAMON RUNYON.

Copyright, 1920, by Star Company.

I REELED off my allotted eight hundred words in this column the other day on dancing, and found I had not even started on the subject.

I talked mostly about that style of dancing which most appeals to my peculiar fancy, the soft shoe, "sand," and eccentric stuff. I must admit that I never could see the ballroom and classical stuff, although I have no doubt it is very beautiful and inspiring to those who understand it.

The late Vernon Castle, who was originally an eccentric dancer, and his wife, Irene Castle, brought the ballroom style to the highest state of development in America with the one step, fox trot, the hesitation, and so on.

However, among the pioneers in that line, and to my notion, among the most entertaining, were the Marvelous Millers, a man and wife, who combined acrobatics with what I might term the semi-classics. The Millers are still dancing, too.

Maurice, a great dancer of his type, came on with the Argentine tango. The Castellos brought in the Spanish stuff. These Latin gyrations were the rage for a long time. After them came the "jazz," and finally, out of Chicago, the jellying "shimmy" movement, headed by "Bee" Palmer. It is indeed a movement.

Mordkin was one of the trail blazers in this country of much of the classical dancing, along with Pavlowa, but today the name of Koslof seems to be more closely associated with the unseen world on which we must assign that style of dancing.

I do not want to get too far into the classics, because I am sure to get tangled up, and they tell me Ivan Bankoff and the Fokines cannot be passed by when talking about classical dancing. Then, too, there is a young American, Maurice Diamond by name, who is said to be among the very best of them all.

Isadora Duncan, Ruth St. Denis and Ted Shawn are other names always mentioned in connection with the classical stuff, and of their school was trained Ruth Denishawn, young, slim, and as graceful as a bird, whose dancing gives me a slight thrill.

But in the main most of this business goes over my scant brow. For me the George M. Cohans, Pat Rooney, Eddie Leonard, Johnny and Louis Mosconi, Doyle and Dixon thing. For me, Ned Wayburn's "hoofers."

Time and again I've been in audiences which heartily applauded a shadowy classical dancer, and pretended great interest in his or her vague manoeuvres, only almost to tear up the seats when they brought on the buck and wing ers. It proves to me that I am not alone in my appreciation of the low-brow species of leg shaking.

Ned Wayburn is said to be the greatest dancing instructor for stage purposes in the world. He is a stoutish, gruffish fellow, who always wears a sweater when he is rehearsing his troupe, and they tell me he never danced a step in his life.

But he has a peculiar faculty for producing dancers. They say that wherever or however you see them you can always tell a Wayburn dancer. His specialty is training girls. He takes them when they do not know one foot from another, so I am informed, and turns them out dancers.

Theatrical people declare that you can pick a Wayburn girl out of the biggest chorus on Broadway just from the way she works. They say he is a harsh taskmaster, "but when he is through with 'em, they are dancers."

What always appealed to me about Wayburn productions more than anything else is that I know that somewhere along the line he is going to send out the soft shoe dancers, accompanied by a little Southern melody.
